HOUSE NAMES PROSECUTORS TO TRY BRUNK IN THE SENATE

May Committee Which Investigated State Treasurer's Conduct in Office to Manage Impeachment Proceedings.

CHARGES ADOPTED BY 118-TO-7 VOTE

Jones Parker and Papke of St. Louis Among the Seven—Action Taken After Four-Hour Debate and Fight for Delay.

By BOYD F. CARROLL, St. Louis Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
JEFFERSON CITY, March 18.—The House today selected six managers to prosecute before the Senate in the impeachment of State Treasurer Harry Brunk, following its action late yesterday in voting the formal impeachment and nine articles of impeachment charging high crimes, misdemeanors and misconduct in office. The articles of impeachment probably will be submitted to the Senate tomorrow after being reprinted.

The managers are the six members of the Clay committee which recommended the impeachment after several weeks of investigation. These six representatives, as members of a special committee, drafted the articles of impeachment. The appointment of the managers was accomplished through a resolution introduced by Majority Floor Leader Blatt of Cole County and adopted without dissent and without discussion.

The Board of Managers.

The managers are Representatives Stanley P. Clay of Joplin, Chairman; Don C. Carter of St. Louis; Willis H. Meredithe of Poplar Bluff and N. M. Bradley, a former Circuit Judge of Warrensburg, Democrats, and George F. Heeg of Kirkwood and Rush H. Linn of Cape Girardeau, Republicans. All of them are lawyers. Brunk, a Republican, automatically will be suspended from office when the Senate坐 on him to assess to appear, and an act of the Senate that will be appointed by the Governor pending result of the trial.

Voting of the impeachment and the articles came after a stormy or hours of discussion, in which a coalition of Republican politicians and rural supporters of the Gary-Becker tax program and Survey Commission bills continued their efforts to delay or block the impeachment proceedings.

This opposition arose from politicians friendly to Brunk or who proposed to impeachment procedures of any kind, and chiefly from the Gary-Becker group, which are the same machine that supported final passage of the Gary-Becker tax increase bills, which we are under discussion in the Senate.

Obstructionists Weakened.

Denunciation by House leaders of Harry and obstructionists tactics weakened this opposition, which at one stage mustered more than 60 votes and it crumbled away when a roll call was taken on the impeachment and adoption of the articles. Representatives who had been in earlier maneuvering fell in line and voted for impeachment and the articles when the roll call was taken. Roll calls became permanent feature in the House Journal.

WASHINGTON, March 18.—The first day's collections of income tax on the 1930 income dropped $6,000,000, as compared with the first day of a year ago. The tax report for Monday, March 16, was $18,100,362, as compared with $18,148,963 a year ago.

The amount covered only that portion of tax for which checks had been deposited before 10 o'clock Monday morning.

WASHINGTON COURT HOUSE, O., March 18.—Mal S. Daugherty, former president of the defunct Ohio State Bank, convicted March 4 of misappropriating the bank's funds, today was sentenced to 10 years in the Ohio penitentiary, fined $5000 and ordered to pay the cost of prosecution.

Judge Charles Bell overruled a motion for a new trial prior to passing sentence. Defense attorneys stated that they would immediately appeal.

Judge Bell granted a 20-day stay of execution. Counsel had indicated they would file exceptions. It was indicated the 15 other indictments against Daugherty would be dismissed.

An investigator for the State said his work was hampered by the fact that certain records of the Midland Bank, which formed a part of the bank, were missing.

Mal Daugherty, brother of former United States Attorney-General Harry M. Daugherty, was a figure in the Senate's oil scandal investigation several years ago. He is 65 years old. The jury finding his guilty took but one ballot. His three weeks' trial was interrupted by the death of his aged mother.

Daugherty's bank failed last May. He was tried on one indictment involving alleged abstraction of $5350. A farmer signed two blank checks which Daugherty filled in for $350 and credited to his account, according to the evidence. The checks were secured by a note but the farmer denied signing it.

Daugherty, as president of the Midland National Bank, refused a special committee permission to inspect the books in view of the fact he had received bribe money in Government deals. The Midland and two other banks later were merged to form the Ohio State Bank.

One loan, made by Daugherty to his wife, was for the purchase of the Jeff Smith estate. Smith was a figure in Washington during the Harding administration.

STRUCK AS HE RUNS OUT OF SHENANDOAH SCHOOL KINDERGARTEN FOR RECESS.

John, 6-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. B. M. Knudsen, 3145 Hawthorne place, was killed at noon today when he was run over by a coal truck as it backed out of the yard of the Shenandoah public school.

As the recess bell rang, John, a kindergarten pupil, was the first child out of the west door of the building. He ran around the building just as the rear of the truck appeared backing around the south corner. The rear wheel passed over him.

The truck, owned by the Timothy Dougherty Hauling Co., 723 North Seventy-sixth street, East St. Louis, was driven by John Harrell, 23, 777 North Fortieth street, East St. Louis. Harrell was driving away after loading a load of coal in the school basement when the bell rang for the midday recess.

SEEK COMPROMISE ON INCOME TAX RATE SCHEDULES

Representatives of Gary and St. Louis Commerce Chamber in Conference at Capital.

EFFORT TO MEET GOVERNOR'S VIEWS

Meanwhile, Senate Continues Debate on Kinney's Amendment to Proposal Approved by Committee.

By CURTIS A. BETTS,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, March 18.—Efforts of representatives of Theodore Gary, chairman of the State Survey Commission, and of the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce to arrive at a compromise income tax rates which will be satisfactory to Gov. Caulfield were continued today.

C. W. Adkins of the Bureau of Municipal Research, who represents the Chamber of Commerce in opposition to the high taxes proposed in the Survey Commission bill, and William R. Gilbert, a St. Louis lawyer, who has been the Gary representative here much of the time during the session, were in conference all day yesterday in the Governor's office without arriving at a definite agreement.

Gilbert worked out a schedule of rates ranging from 1 per cent to 1½ per cent, while Adkins proposed to confine them to too high, favoring rates ranging from 1 to 3½ per cent. The difference between them was over the amount of revenue which will be produced by the different rates.

Governor for a Compromise.

The Governor, who has remained aloof from the legislative controversy over the tax bill, has begun to take an active part in the legislation. The Senate has debated the question for four days, and the Governor felt that the time might be near when it would appear in favor of a compromise.

If a so-called compromise is presented, however, it will be one estimated to produce only slightly more than an additional $4,000,000 of revenue, which was the amount the Governor told the Legislature in his biennial message early in January that he favored at that time. The Governor suggested a flat 2 per cent rate.

As told exclusively in the Post-Dispatch yesterday, the Governor favors a graduated tax over a flat rate tax, his recommendation for the flat tax having been because the need for taxation at the time to make possible a calculation as the amount a graduated tax would produce. Since that time these statistics have become available.

Dearmon for a Compromise.

While the statisticians are still endeavoring to arrive at an agreement as to the amounts which might be expected from the different schedules under consideration, the debate in the Senate on the Kinney amendment to the Ways and Means Committee amendment to the original bill continued, today being the fifth consecutive legislative day devoted to the subject.

The Kinney amendment rates are much lower than those in the Ways and Means Committee amendment, which has the support of Senator Dearmon, chairman of the committee, and the Senate committee to the Survey Commission program.

Virtually no progress was made yesterday, when, because of the absence of Senator Whitecotton of Paris and Senator Kelley of Pineville, two who have supported the Dearmon group in its effort to pass the measure as reported by the committee, prospects of a measure for a flat tax in the Kinney amendment reached a low.

Senator Whitecotton arrived for the afternoon session, but Senator Kelley was unable to be in his seat because of illness. It was evident that Senator Dearmon, in charge of the bill, was doubtful that he could defeat the Kinney amendment without Kelley's vote.

Dearmon occupied nearly an hour at the morning session in speaking in opposition to the amendment which he said would provide additional revenue on individual incomes of only 3 of 1 per cent. The remainder of the day was taken by Senator Davis of Kansas City in detailed interrogation of Dearmon as to the income which he estimated would be produced by the committee's amendment to the original bill. Davis insisting that the bill would produce a much larger revenue than Dearmon estimated.

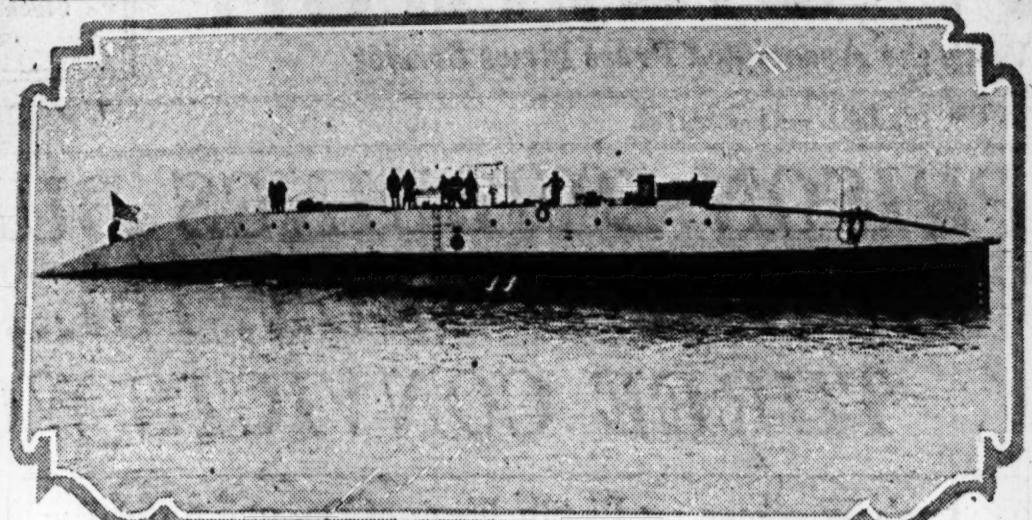

Estimate Offered by Dearmon.

Under Davis' questioning, Dearmon divided his estimate according to the classifications of the committee's amendment. He said that on the basis of 138,000 income taxpayers in the State, the number who paid taxes on their incomes, 75 per cent paid on net taxable incomes that is incomes above legal deductions and personal exemptions of $1500 or less.

On this basis, he said, the Ways and Means Committee amendment would produce from this class an annual revenue of $651,550.

In the next classification, net taxable income exceeding $1500 and not exceeding $4000 are 16 per cent before Forstel received the of the taxpayers, who, he said, would pay $704,960.

In the next classification, incomes exceeding $4,000 but not exceeding $10,000, are 6 per cent, he said, would pay $1,157,950.

In the next classification, incomes exceeding $10,000 but not exceeding $16,000, are 1½ per cent of the taxpayers, who, he said, would pay $716,560.

In the next and final classification, incomes exceeding $16,000 are 1½ per cent of the taxpayers, who, he said, would pay $2,367,950.

His estimate of the total which would be produced was $5,599,210.

Dearmon explained that this amount would be materially reduced the first year because of the fact the law, if passed, would operate only half the year.

He said the business depression should also be given consideration in estimating the yield of the tax, telling the Senators that it could not be expected that business conditions and normal earnings would return for several years.

The Post-Dispatch has been told that Forstel received but one telephone call from the underworld agent and that Lemon established a contact when the agent telephoned him at his office in the Telephone Building.

Brinkman's Visit to Miller.

Brinkman's visit to the Circuit Attorney was made in December but did not become known until after recovery of the bonds announced Feb. 20, when Circuit Attorney Miller told reporters he had been consulted by a minority stockholder of the bank. The Post-Dispatch disclosed Brinkman was the visitor.

The fact Brinkman had the opinion on the argument that Dearmon's estimate was low.

The Kinney amendment was under discussion when the Senate took an early adjournment after 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

GRAND JURY HEARS FIVE WITNESSES IN BANK LOOT INQUIRY

at Houston, Tex., to return to St. Louis for grand jury examination.

Developments of the last few days show that State Representative Joseph L. Lemon, who dealt with the underworld in stolen bonds, proceeded with the full knowledge of the Circuit Attorney Franklin Miller of the transaction. Miller knew on the legality of paying a reward for the recovery of stolen property.

Edward W. Forstel, lawyer and Republican politician, who has said he was approached first by the thief's agent, has said in a formal statement to the press that he urged upon Lemon and Emmett M. Myers, president of Marion, not to make any move until they heard the Circuit Attorney's opinion from Benjamin G. Brinkman, a minority stockholder of the bank and a client of Forstel.

Forstel's Suggestion.

Forstel had suggested that Brinkman see the Circuit Attorney and find out if it would be legal to pay for the return of the bonds, provided no promise of protection was made to the thieves or their agents.

However, Lemon and Forstel did not rely on Brinkman's report of his conversation with Miller but both went to the Circuit Attorney and discussed the law with him.

The result was that Lemon had proceeded to negotiate with the unidentified underworld agent with full knowledge of the Circuit Attorney, who obtained by the persons, while Myers negotiated with Ed Mayes, president of the bank, for the payment of a reward of $140,000 for $22,000 worth of bonds.

Among the points which have a bearing on the case is the question—on which the police maintain an open mind—whether Lemon had information that the bonds could be recovered or knowledge of the identity of the agent to be dealt with, before he was recommended for the job of negotiator by Forstel.

Since Lemon was brought into the investigation as a principal in the transaction, his friends have pointed out that the employment and the $15,000 fee that went with it came at a time when he particularly needed financial relief. Ill for a year with kidney trouble, he had been able to do little professional work, with the result that he was in debt.

Estimate Offered by Dearmon.

Under Davis' questioning, Dearmon divided his estimate according to the classifications of the committee's amendment. He said that on the basis of 138,000 income taxpayers in the State, the number who paid taxes on their incomes, 75 per cent paid on net taxable incomes that is incomes above legal deductions and personal exemptions of $1500 or less.

On this basis, he said, the Ways and Means Committee amendment would produce from this class an annual revenue of $651,550.

In the next classification, net taxable income exceeding $1500 and not exceeding $4000 are 16 per cent before Forstel received the mysterious telephone message that the bonds could be recovered for price, Lemon met Forstel by chance, mentioned his financial plight and asked Forstel to "keep me in mind for anything you can think of my way."

Forstel kept Lemon in mind and when the underworld agent called him on the telephone he told the man he would recommend "Dick" Lemon to handle the transaction in the event his clients, Brinkman and others associated in the Vandyer Securities Co., decided to proceed in the matter. The underworld agent professed not to be acquainted with Lemon, Forstel said, and Forstel consulted the telephone book to get Lemon's full name and address, so that the thieves who looted the bank.

Obviously, the police say, if the man who dealt with Lemon used a name such as "Sam Smith of Indianapolis" he would be no reason why Lemon would not come forward. Inasmuch as a search for a man so meagerly described would probably be unavailing. On the other hand, police have pointed out that Lemon's failure to testify could have been brought about only by the fact that he actually knew the man he dealt with and would place him in jeopardy by disclosing his name.

The Post-Dispatch has been told that Forstel received but one telephone call from the underworld agent and that Lemon established a contact when the agent telephoned him at his office in the Telephone Building.

Brinkman's Visit to Miller.

BOMB EXPLOSION ON 8TH FLOOR OF BUDER BUILDING

hole, two feet in diameter, into the ceiling of the seventh floor.

But if the bombers reckoned that the hole would be smashed in the Empire News Co. office, they made a material error in their calculations.

Instead, the bomb tore down into room 710, a record room for the Harry Benjamin Equipment Co. There files were overturned, papers scattered on the floor and the litter showered with tile, plaster and fragments of concrete from the floor above.

The office of the Empire News Co. was damaged only to the extent that a piece of plaster the size of a hand was shaken from the ceiling. It did not fall through the floor further damage by the fact it was not beneath room 807 and by the additional fact that the girder in the ceiling above shielded it from the blast.

James F. Cook, managing engineer for Isaac T. Cook & Co., agents for the building, declared it would be impossible to estimate damage until construction experts had made a survey. He said it was at least $500.

Only one elevator was in operation at the time of the explosion. The operator, a Negro girl, told police a man whom she did not recognize asked her to take him to the eighth floor 20 minutes before the explosion. She refused because no offices were open on that floor. The man, she said, carried a small package wrapped in paper.

Police in the Dark.

Brinkman did not take the matter up with the police, and Miller had the information along the police or check to learn whether Brinkman had done so.

"I was handling that thing in my own way," the Prosecutor has explained. "I thought that was the right way to handle it at the time I did not know what to do."

When Owen arrived at the office this afternoon he declared he had not been in Jefferson City but was in St. Louis when the explosion occurred.

Lemon announced that he would tell the grand jury all details of his negotiations, and delivered the stolen securities to Myers in exchange for cash on Jan. 21 and 22 in the safety deposit vault of the First National Bank, where the securities remained, in a box rented by Myers almost a month before police were told they had been recovered.

He said he did not recognize the man whom he got the look. After discussing his position with a half dozen lawyers and friends, he still insisted he would tell the grand jury everything, but at the last minute changed his mind and refused to testify, on the grounds that any statement he made might incriminate him.

A Post-Dispatch reporter sought to learn the reason for Lemon's sudden change of front, but he denied that he had been threatened or warned not to testify, and was known to have broken recently

"I haven't got anything to say about it, though," he added. "The newspapers are doing the talking. Why anyone should figure they were trying to bomb our office I can't see. Our name is right on the door and that's where a bomb would be placed if it was meant for us."

We haven't any trouble and we haven't any competition in our business. There's no reason why we should be the object of any bombing and I don't think we were."

YEARLY HIRING PLAN FOR TEACHERS BEATE

Measure Defeated in Missouri House 70 to 44; No Similar Bills Pending.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., March 18.—The bill to give St. Louis public school teachers one-year appointments instead of the two-year tenure now in force, was defeated decisively in the House of Representatives this afternoon. The vote was 44 for the bill and 70 against, whereas 76 affirmative votes were needed for passage.

No similar bill is pending in the Senate, and today's action is expected to kill the effort to change the teachers' terms.

Attention was called on the floor of the House to the fact that the St. Louis Board of Education has gone on record against the bill, and various "teachers" and principals' organizations in St. Louis, the measure had been introduced by Representatives Davies and Hehl. St. Louis is the origin of his name was attached by Davies and Davies has refused to disclose at whose request he introduced the bill.

The only St. Louis Representatives voting for the bill were Davies, Hehl, Schaeffer and Clegg, Negro. Those from St. Louis voting against it were Representatives Goerner, Huber, Papke, Plosser, Williams, Wolff, Praechter, Lemons, Rienner, Schneider, Schultz and Rens. Representative Jones E. Parker of St. Louis argued in support of the bill but was missing from his seat at roll call. Other absences in the St. Louis delegation were Representatives Fisher and Miller.

Differences of opinion expressed by members of the city delegation amused the House and appeared to contribute to the defeat of the measure. Hehl and Parker spoke for it and Schneider, Huber, Plosser and Wolff against it.

Stateville prison surmounts high bluff flanking the Illinois River three miles north of Joliet. Its construction began after legislative provision of 1906, delayed and the prison was completed seven years ago.

It was built to house 2000 prisoners but Col. Frank D. White, State Superintendent of Prisons reported recently both old and new penitentiaries were 40 per cent overcrowded. Twenty-two foot walls surround the 67-acre prison area.

THOMASSON HELD INCOMPETENT AND GUARDIAN NAMED

Aged Capitalist Not Present When Judge Rules on Application of Second Cousin.

LESSEE CONFUSED BY LEGAL TANGLE

Pays Installment on Property Rental to Court Leaving It to Decide Who Gets Money.

Hugh W. Thomasson, aged capitalist, whose marital affairs have engaged public attention for several months, was held to be of unsound mind and incapable of managing his affairs by Probate Judge Hodgson at Clayton yesterday. Public Administrator Terry of St. Louis County was appointed his guardian.

Thomasson was not present at the hearing, but his attorney for many years, Stephen C. Rogers, entered appearance for him and gave notice to his client. Rogers' opinion was to oppose the application to the court to determine who is entitled to receive it.

Rogers' petition states that he has been unable to determine the legal status of the case because of transfers of title to the property and the various suits pending. Thomasson deeded the property and another parcel of real estate to his wife several months ago, and later the title was transferred again back to Thomasson and his wife jointly. The two parcels are estimated to be worth about $700,000.

Technically Defendants Named.

Those named in Frank's petition with the technical status of defendants are Mr. and Mrs. Thomas, their lawyers, Marion X. Morris and Milton C. Lauenstein, the law suits for fees pending, and William H. Pfeiffer, receiver to the Thomasson properties appointed by Circuit Court in St. Louis County.

The Probate Court hearing was set on application of Thomasson's second cousin, Mrs. Ella Bolles, 118 Watt Avenue, University City, where he stayed last September after leaving his 28-year-old bride, Mrs. Grace G. Thompson, 111 years old.

Several cousins of Thomasson, Mrs. Mary Bolles, testified that she was incoherent in conversation, prior to Jan. 21, when he went over with his wife. The witnesses expressed the opinion that he clearly was of unsound mind. A clerk at the hotel where Thomasson reportedly had failed to recognize him, two women who had known Thomasson for about 20 years also told he had spoken incoherently when they saw him.

Taken Under Advisement.

The application of Public Administrator Schuler of St. Louis to permission to take charge of Thomasson's property as receiver was taken under advisement by Circuit Judge Hauseman today. Thomasson was not present, and although Rogers was there he took to stand either in favor of or opposed to the application.

Thomasson has been away from St. Louis for several weeks and is thought to be in Chicago. With Mrs. Thomasson he conferred at Springfield, Ill., Monday, with her attorney, Wilfred Jones, and one of his Walter Wehrle, who has been representing Thomasson in a suit to annul the marriage which is pending in St. Louis County.

It was said Thomasson told Wehrle he was no longer required and that he intended to drop the annulment suit.

Rogers has received notices to the same effect, written by Mrs. Thomasson and signed by her husband, but disregarded them, and has said that he will continue to act for Thomasson until Thomasson personally discharges him.

Police Photograph of Looted Bank Vault

REAR view of a section of safe deposit box racks. The robbers pried off the sheet-iron backing and withdrew the boxes.

a. Jan. 21, and the second installation at 1:30 p. m. Jan. 22. By coincidence the latter date had a double significance for one of the parties interested in the recovery of the Grand bank loot. That party was Hilmer, one of the members of the Vandeventer Securities Co. group. First, the return of the loot re-established his stock in the Grand bank at its former value, and it also restored to its original value as collateral the Grand bank stock which his broker had held as security for the $700,000 loan it had made to Hilmer's associates in the effort to get control of the Grand bank; second, that was the day on which his brokerage firm was suspended by the New York Stock Exchange.

Facts Published, But Denied.

The bonds, as is known, remained in the First National safe-deposit vault for almost a month, while Murray and Myers and others having knowledge of the matter denied to reporters that any negotiations were in progress. However on Jan. 23 the Post-Dispatch published exclusively the news that negotiations were in progress, if not already concluded, and obtained an admission from Mays that he knew negotiations were under way. On Feb. 11 the Post-Dispatch quoted Brinkman as saying he understood from Forstel that the bonds were "in safe deposit in a depository." Forstel on that date admitted he had received inquiries which he had referred to Lemon. Lemon declined to affirm or deny connection with the matter.

On Feb. 20 President Mays asked Police Headquarters for detectives to meet him at the First National Bank and accompany him to his own bank "with some bonds," and announced when they arrived that the bonds in question were the stolen ones.

Meanwhile, the burglars' agent received $125,000 for his "hot bonds" and had enjoyed a month in which to move beyond the reach of the St. Louis police if he feared clews to his identity might develop.

As things stand today, the robbers have divided about $200,000 in cash and the proceeds of securities valued at $60,000; the bank and its customers have their securities. Mays continues in control of the bank; the minority group's stock is still held by the reorganized Anderson company as collateral for the syndicate's loan, and the police are holding the bag, a cheap cardboard suit case, in which Lemon carried most of the stolen bonds to the First National's vault.

Whether or not the robbery was planned with a view to selling the bonds to or through one of the contending factions of stockholders, it turned out that way.

According to the theory under discussion, the "brains" behind the robbery after dividing the $70,000 of cash taken from the vault, probably was the man who should have been held responsible for the loss, but he was not held responsible for the loss because he had been paid to do it.

For 40-Hour Week in Germany.

BERLIN, March 18.—The Reichstag yesterday adopted a committee resolution recommending the drafting of a bill providing for a 40-hour working week to relieve unemployment.

At any rate, an unidentified man telephoned Forstel, who is counsel for Brinkman and the Vandeventer Securities Co., and opened negotiations.

Forstel, in a formal statement, has said the man telephoned "some time last fall" and asked if the Vandeventer Securities Co. would be interested in recovering the Grand National bank bonds. Forstel told the man he would find out and if it was interested would recommend Lemon to represent it in the negotiations.

Forstel's Story of Deal.

Forstel, according to his statement, immediately called Brinkman and urged him to find out from Circuit Attorney Miller if it would be legal to pay for the return of the bonds provided immediately was not promised, then called Mays, whose company had paid the bank $125,000 under a robbery insurance policy, recommended the employment of Lemon and brought Mays and Lemon together. Forstel, it is known, also notified Hilmer, who visited Mays at the bank about Dec. 1, and told the banker that an overture had been made.

Ed Mays has expressed the opinion that some of the robbery bonds and others did not have the blue seal of the bank, and that the robbery was committed by the robbers themselves.

During his statement, Forstel said: "I believe the reason the anonymous call was made to my office was the fact that newspaper stories at the time the bank was robbed described me as a 'hostile director' in the institution. Whoever it was that called me apparently was afraid to deal directly with Mays for fear that he might be subjected to danger of imprisonment and prosecution."

Since the publication of that statement it has developed that not only Brinkman, but Lemon and Forstel called on Circuit Attorney Miller for his view of the laws relating to the transaction they were contemplating. In this connection the Circuit Attorney has said he and all concerned that he would not hold their communications confidential, but he did not warn the banker.

Lemon Paid Out $125,000.

During the week which followed the robbery, when estimates of loss were mounting from day to day, Brinkman called on Mays with the proposal to pay the bank $125,000, the amount of the collateral, to the robbers.

Brinkman's offer declined.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 18.—As soon as the Missouri River becomes navigable, an adequate supply of barges will be available for immediate transportation service. This assurance was given by Col. Clarence B. Douglas, representative of the Inland Waterways Corporation, in Kansas City yesterday. Col. Douglas is connected with the operating department of the Federal Barge Line and is a representative of the War Department. "The barges are being built at five shipyards out of a $1,500,000 contract," said Col. Douglas. ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH

DECLARES CHANGE IN LINDELL BLVD. ZONING IS INVALID

Officer of Council on Civic Needs Says Only Alterations
That Are Comprehensive Will Stand.

Change of the zoning or portions of Lindell boulevard from the multiple dwelling district to the commercial, as proposed in several ordinances pending in the Board of Aldermen, would be unconstitutional if adopted, in the opinion of Prof. A. S. Langsdorf, vice chairman of the City Plan Commission.

He expressed this view yesterday before the General Council on Civic Needs and the Civic Development Bureau of the Chamber of Commerce, which met to discuss the desirability of limiting amendments to the zoning system.

Zoning is only constitutional, Langsdorf declared, when it is comprehensive.

The proposed changes on Lindell, which are desired by some property owners there, are not considered to be of a comprehensive nature.

The original zoning scheme for St. Louis was comprehensive, he pointed out, but many amendments have been made for districts throughout the city, as was told in the Post-Dispatch last week.

If the city is to retain adequate zoning, Langsdorf advised, a group of changes to revise the amendment procedure should be adopted by the Board of Aldermen. Piecemeal zoning of the sort St. Louis has been getting through the various local amendments is detrimental to the city's future, he declared.

The procedural changes he advocated were those recommended by a special committee of the General Council on Civic Needs several months ago. They include provision for adequate notice to affected property owners, reference of amendments to the City Plan Commission, strict regulations as to what types of use district amendments are permissible or prohibited, and safeguards in the event of protests by affected property owners.

Liberal provision of land for apartment and commercial usage was made under the zoning law originally, Prof. Langsdorf reminded his audience to show that there is "no justification for having commercial and other nonconforming uses encroaching on different types of development."

"Zoning," he concluded, "depends on the exercise of the police power, and any kind of enactment resting on that power is only as good as its administration. Zoning is not primarily in the interest of beauty, but it is a recognized fact that beauty follows zoning, because zoning brings orderliness."

NEW YORK PETITIONS CONGRESS FOR REPEAL OF PROHIBITION

Senate Adopt Assembly Plea Calling of Conventions of States to Nullify Dry Law.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., March 18.—The Rhode Island House of Representatives this afternoon unanimously passed a bill conveying to Congress a denunciation of the eighteenth amendment as un-American and crime-breeding. Republicans and Democrats united in an amendment directing their delegation in Congress to initiate legislation calling for constitutional conventions with a view to repealing or modifying the eighteenth amendment.

Eight Republican voted with the solid Democratic minority in favor of the resolution.

A resolution petitioning Congress to consider a constitutional convention to consider repeal of the eighteenth amendment was passed 29 to 21. Six Republicans joined the Democrats in its support. The resolution already has passed the Assembly.

The Senate then took up a bill to declare a policy for the State with respect to control of liquor within its borders. A motion to suspend the rules lacked one of a majority and failed to carry. This bill was designed to place the control, sale and distribution of liquor under direction of the State.

HOLDUP MAN SHOT DURING ROBBERY GETS 10 YEARS

Emmett J. McDonald, 31, Pleads Guilty; Penalty Minimum Under Henry Law.

Emmett J. McDonald, 31-year-old holdup man, who was shot by a Negro boy Dec. 8 last, during a robbery, pleaded guilty of first degree robbery while armed before Circuit Judge Green today and was sentenced to 10 years in the penitentiary, the minimum for the offense under the Henry law.

McDonald held up Earl Avery, 16-year-old Negro odd-job boy in the drug store of Rudolph Wittig, at Vandeventer and Enright avenues, and stole an automatic pistol after failing to open the safe where narcotics, of which he was in quest, were kept. Avery fired at him as he fled and a bullet struck him in the hip.

OPEN VERDICT IS RETURNED IN DEATH OF MRS. MARY LITMAN

Witness Before Coroner's Jury Testifies Gas Burners in Apartment Had Been Found Defective.

An open verdict was returned today at the inquest in the case of Mrs. Mary Litman found dead of gas poisoning in a vacant apartment she owned at 1224A Tammaville, seated before a gas stove with covers opened but unlit gas burners. A headline in the Post-Dispatch yesterday stated erroneously that Mrs. Litman had ended her own life. The Coroner's jury was unable to determine whether her death was accidental or intentional.

Mrs. Litman went to the apartment Monday to await prospective tenants. Mrs. Ray Keen, 5803 Page boulevard, testified that she accompanied her to the apartment Sunday and had found the gas burners defective. A repair man was called to remedy the condition, she said.

Mrs. Litman's daughter, Mrs. Elizabeth Epstein of Chicago, and today she was convinced her mother had not ended her life.

While waiting for the tenants, Mrs. Epstein said, her mother had written a letter in which she said she intended to visit her in Chicago next week. Mrs. Litman, who lived at 5523A Easton avenue, operated the Litman drug store at Hamilton and Wabash avenues until two months ago.

at St. Joseph's Hospital, Highland, Ill., at 7 p.m. An inquest will be held this afternoon at Alhambra.

The automobile was demolished.

Four other children had not accompanied their parents.

TWO NEGRO FUGITIVES REPORTED CAPTURED

Prisoners in Pennsylvania Believed to Be Ones Wanted in East St. Louis.

Police of Garrett, Pa., notified Sheriff Munie of St. Clair County today that they have under arrest two Negroes who answer the description of two who forced their way into three East St. Louis homes Friday night and attacked her own life. The Coroner's jury was unable to determine whether her death was accidental or intentional.

CHARGES AGAINST MAYOR WALKER BEFORE GOVERNOR

Accusations, Alleging Misfeasance in Office in 10
Specific Cases, Made Public by Roosevelt.

By Associated Press.
ALBANY, N. Y., March 18.—Charges preferred against the administration of Mayor James J. Walker of New York by the City Affairs Committee, made public by Gov. Roosevelt today, allege misfeasance in office in 10 specific cases.

The charges said the Mayor had mismanaged his office in the government of the city in a wanton and incompetent fashion.

Summary of the Charges.
The summary of the charges against Mayor Walker follows:

Failure to act on allegations that the Board of Standards and Appeals had been used in the interest of real estate speculators.

Appointment of James F. Geraghty as Commissioner of Licenses constituted "not only a grave, but a patently willful neglect of public duty."

Tardiness of the Mayor in acting on alleged disproportionate awards in condemnation cases which the committee estimated to be resulting in an annual loss to the city of $23,000,000.

Failure to act on corruption in the Health Department, which the committee said had been revealed by investigation.

Retention in the office of Director of the Budget by the Mayor of a man whose "knowledge of corruption" in the Health Department disqualifies him from office.

Failure of the Mayor to fulfill a promise that he would correct "indecent conditions" in the Department of Hospitals and in "permitting, if not actually compelling," appointment of untrained Deputy Commissioners who held high place in Tammany Hall.

Failure to speak "one clear and earnest word of disapproval and denunciation of this orgy of corruption" in the Dept. of Transportation and Sinking Fund Commission.

Failure to remove from office officials who refused to testify before a grand jury investigating charges of corruption.

An attempt "in every way to obstruct and even block" the progress of the inquiry into Magistrates' courts.

Failure to give initial impulse and "ardent support" into an investigation of charges of corruption in the Police Department.

"Indecency and Corruption."

"He has failed properly to administer the government of the city of New York in the interests of the people," the charges said of Mayor Walker. "He has ignored conditions of inefficiency and corruption, and if under public pressure he has initiated investigations, he has allowed such investigations to lapse without report or result. He has appointed unworthy men to public office and kept in office unworthy men subject by law to his removal."

"The conduct of the office of Mayor since he took office on Jan. 1, 1930, has been incompetent, inefficient and futile with the result that the local machinery of government has failed to function properly and the administration of the city has been brought into disrepute."

Problem of Magistrates' Courts.
"Nothing more clearly reveals the incompetence, ineffectiveness, unfitness and grave dishonor of the Mayors as the highest public official of this city," the memorandum states. "In his relation to the problem of the Magistrate's Courts, the shocking conditions in these courts recently revealed by the inquiry set on foot by the Governor were commonly known long before this inquiry was instituted."

At no time did the Mayor make the slightest attempt to correct existing conditions in a field in which his is the appointive power, nor did he display the slightest interest in a situation which was bringing the law into contempt, denying justice to the people, and destroying the confidence of the citizens in the integrity of their courts and therefore of the whole substance of their government's policies."

The City Affairs Committee, represented by the Rev. Dr. John Haynes Holmes and Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, filed the accusations of inefficiency and neglect with the Governor.

W. AND J. STUDENTS STRIKE
Walk Out of Assembly in Protest Against College President.

By Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Pa., March 18.—The student body of 412 men at Washington and Jefferson College walked out of assembly today after 150 students had signed a petition protesting against continuance of Dr. Simon R. Baker as president. Dr. Baker had been president of the college, one of the oldest in Western Pennsylvania, for 19 years.

The walkout occurred as Dr. Baker arose in chapel to make his customary announcements. The petitioners said 25 members of the faculty supported their action. The petition charged Dr. Baker had an unsympathetic attitude toward the students particularly against members of the college athletic teams. It also cited his enforcement of rules the students characterized as "childish," among them one forbidding the wearing of corduroy trousers on the campus.

RESCUE VESSELS REACH SURVIVORS OF SHIP EXPLOSION

Craft Standing by Isle Off Newfoundland as Six More Men Are Saved From Ice Floes.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 18.—One body from the sealer Viking was found today near the spot in White Bay, Newfoundland, where the ship exploded Sunday night. Bowring & Co., ship owners, were advised this afternoon from St. Johns, Newfoundland.

The sealers Eagle and Neptune found the body, the first to be found. They were in the approximate position where the Viking exploded, burned and sank.

The message said: "Eagle, Neptune found one white explosion occurred; wreckage, timbers, clothing and one body. Reported ice conditions terrible. Steel boat trying to reach island (Horse Island, where most of survivors are). Conditions there must be very bad."

By the Associated Press.
ST. JOHNS, N. F., March 18.—Help is coming for the survivors and a check to determine the number of dead or missing constituted a task today for rescue ships lying off Horse Island, near which an explosion burned and sank the sealer Viking.

Lack of exact information regarding the number of persons aboard the 50-year-old sealing ship when a blast tore out its stern Sunday night, causing reports on the number who had made their way across eight miles of ice floes to the island, left the number unaccounted for in doubt. Officials said they thought the final check would show 20 in the death list.

Three additional survivors were rescued from the ice floes by the comfortable as they can on the bleak, barren island.

The steamer Sagona arrived last night but made no attempt to put a boat ashore or take off any of the men aboard. There were three survivors, rescued from a bit of the Viking's wreckage yesterday 15 miles from where the ship blew up.

They were Harry Sargent, actor-explorer of Boston, a member of Varick Frissell's motion picture expedition; Capt. W. Kennedy, navigator of the Viking, and Wireless Officer C. King of the Viking.

All three had suffered injuries and were weak from 48 hours' exposure. King was the most seriously injured, with a broken leg, both feet frozen and suffering from shock. Kennedy was suffering from burns on the head and face. Sargent had a slight injury to one eye.

Two More Men Missing.

Sargent is the only member of the motion picture party accounted for. Frissell, who was aboard the Viking with his assistants to take sealing scenes for his picture, "White Thunder," and A. G. Peck, his cameraman, are still missing.

Although figures on the number of men aboard the Viking varied from 142 to 155, Newfoundland officials said they thought the ship carried an official complement of 142, including Frissell's motion picture party. Two young stowaways were found aboard after the ship left here, March 9, making a total of 144 on the sealer when it blew up.

A radio message from the sealing vessel Ungava, which is participating in the search of White Bay, said there were 118 on Horse Island, 118 others aboard the Sagona, and that three others had been found on the ice, making 124 accounted for and leaving 20 dead or missing.

Two Officers and Sailor.

The three saved today were "Johnson, Kean and Best," according to the wireless. They are thought to be W. Johnson, master watch, Conception Bay; Alfred Kean, mate, Brookfield, N. F., and a Newfoundland known only as Best, who was assisting three Americans in a movie expedition.

Between 118 and 124 survivors are huddled on Horse Island making the best of its meager facilities and waiting for the rescue ships. Sagona and Foundation Franklin, to take them off. Doctors and nurses have begun distribution of food and medicine.

Five Houses on Island.

The more seriously injured are being cared for in the five houses of the winter colony, while the others are making themselves as them, but feared they could not be rescued before daylight.

Among the missing was Edward Cronin, 12 years old, St. John's, one of the two stowaways. The other is a wayward, Michael Gardner, reached Horse Island.

The missing list also includes the names of the ship's doctor, W. J. Roach; Chief Engineer J. Murphy; Second Engineer F. Parnell; Third Engineer H. Hanniford, six firemen and seven seafarers.

Probable Cause of Explosion.

The cause of the blast has not been determined. One possibility advanced is that the steam boiler let go under a high steam pressure raised to drive the ship through the ice. The other is an explosion of blasting powder used to clear a channel in the ice.

Capt. Abram Kean Jr., master of the Viking and one of the most seriously injured, said he was on the bridge when the explosion threw him onto the ice. He is on Horse Island.

The rescue ships with other vessels of the sealing fleet spent the night cruising among the ice floes in White Bay seeking survivors on the ice, or bodies. The sealing ships which had left the Viking behind and passed through Belle Isle Strait rushed back yesterday to help in the rescue.

Brother, Not Girl, Sent Out News of Disaster by Wireless.

HORSE ISLAND, N. F., March 18.—It was explained today why Miss O. Bartlett's name was carried in newspapers throughout America as the heroine of the Viking disaster. She had been an amateur wireless operator on this lonely island for two years until last Christmas and had been used largely by the Newfoundland Postal Telegraph Co. Christmas she left the island but her brother carried on her work and never thought to have the name changed on the telegraph company records.

So it was not until the first news of the explosion of the Viking reached the world, but her brother did the work. He went 48 hours without sleep.

Explosion Attributed to Sparks in Blasting Powder.

NEW YORK, March 18.—Charles W. Bowring of Bowring & Co., owners of the Viking, received a message last night from Horse Island in response to a radio dispatch asking for particulars of the explosion. It read: "Explosion caused by sparks getting to blasting powder while cans were being filled."

Brockies' Shop Robbed of $4000. By the Associated Press.

TWO WITNESSES HELD IN COLLAPSE OF MURDER CASE

Negro and Boy, 16, Repudiate Identification of Ralph Picarella as Lombardo Slayer.

A Negro and a 16-year-old youth who were expected to be the chief witnesses against Ralph Picarella, charged with the murder of William Lombardo, repudiated their identifications of Picarella when they were called as witnesses today, and Circuit Judge Taylor directed the jury to return a verdict of not guilty.

Assistant Circuit Attorney John L. Sullivan ordered the arrest of the witnesses, Matthew McClure, 21-year-old Negro, and John Randazzo, 16, of 1621 Atchison place. They were booked on the charge "suspected of perjury."

Lombardo, classed by police as an extortionist and bootlegger, was fatally wounded last Dec. 26 in front of his home, 1511 Carr street, by shots fired from a passing automobile. He died three days later, insisting that he did not know who shot him.

No Other Eyewitness.

A recess was taken after Randazzo had testified and when the court was again in session Sullivan told Judge Taylor he had no other witnesses who would be able to place Picarella at the scene of the shooting but had intended to develop through them a motive and the fact that Picarella had gone in hiding after the murder.

Judge Taylor ruled that it would serve no purpose to continue the trial under the circumstances and instructed the jury to acquit the defendant.

McClure, Sullivan said, had told police he knew Picarella by sight and recognized him as the driver. The boy did not know Picarella, but identified him as the driver after his arrest, Sullivan said.

On the witness stand today McClure testified he saw neither Picarella nor the blue automobile and said he never knew Picarella until after his arrest when he went to the office of Verne Lacy, the defendant's lawyer, to give his deposition.

Randazzo likewise testified that he had not seen Picarella at the scene of the shooting and said he had seen several automobiles, one of which might have been blue or green.

Story They Formerly Told.

McClure and Randazzo were in a store at Fifteenth and Carr streets when the shots were fired and ran out, according to statements made later to police and before the grand jury which indicted Picarella, to see a blue Ford automobile being driven from the scene of the shooting.

McClure, Sullivan said, had told police he knew Picarella by sight and recognized him as the driver. The boy did not know Picarella, but identified him as the driver after his arrest, Sullivan said.

On the witness stand today McClure testified he saw neither Picarella nor the blue automobile and said he never knew Picarella until after his arrest when he went to the office of Verne Lacy, the defendant.

Picarella was arrested a month after the murder and was released on bond because the State was unwilling at that time to disclose the witness it expected to use against him. He is 24 years old and lives at 1228A Blair avenue.

Harry K. Thaw to Quit Farming.

WINCHESTER, Va., March 18.—

Harry K. Thaw has decided to LEGISLATIVE INQUIRY OF M.W.A.

Illinois House to Investigate Fraternal Order's Rates.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., March 18.—

Modern Woodmen of America insurance rates will be investigated by a subcommittee of the House Insurance Committee of the General Assembly, it was decided yesterday.

The action was opposed vigorously by Representative Frank McCarthy, Elgin, author of a resolution to conduct a sweeping investigation into the workings of the fraternal order. Representative D. Logan Giffin, Springfield, declared nothing could be gained by bringing a factional fight of the Woodmen into the General Assembly, since the issue already had been determined by the Supreme Court.

NEW BILL MAKES SLIGHT CHANGE IN SEWER LAW

Senate Committee Reports Favorably on Measure That Deals With Organization of Districts.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, March 18.—The bill for repeal of the Ralph sewer law, which has been in the hands of the Senate Judiciary Committee for more than six weeks, was replaced by a committee substitute last night and reported favorably, leaving the present law without any essential changes. The same substitute was appended to the House bill for repeal which also was referred to the Judiciary Committee upon being sent to the Senate.

The committee substitute was drawn by a subcommittee composed of Senators Davis of Kansas City, Wammack of Bloomfield and Ralph of St. Louis County, whose name the bill bears.

The amended sections would have little effect on the eight districts now incorporated in St. Louis County, since the new provisions apply, for the most part, to organization of districts.

Supervisors, engineers, lawyers and others interested financially in sewer construction under the Ralph law in St. Louis County made little effort to defeat the bill for repeal introduced in the House by Representative Heege, and it was passed without a dissenting vote. However, when the same bill was being considered by the Senate Committee, they made their first vigorous protest against repeal, insisting that the county should not be left without a sewer law.

Features of the law which were attacked when the bill was introduced in 1928 and criticized as a "plutocracy for lawyers and engineers" will remain if the committee substitute is adopted.

A proposed bill, submitted for consideration as a substitute by John E. Mooney, president of the Taxpayers' Protective Association, which would have removed the sections which he and his organization have objected to, was ignored by the subcommittee.

Insistence for New Law.

Mooney insisted, when he appeared before the committee, that the Ralph law should be repealed and that an entirely new law should be enacted, thereby bringing about a reorganization of present districts.

The new law suggested by Mooney provided for organization of sewer districts only on petition of a majority of the taxpayers and required a vote before bonds might be issued. Instead of basing assessment of benefits and damages on the report of commissioners, the Mooney bill provided that costs be assessed in proportion to the value of property as shown by the books of the County Assessor.

The committee substitute provides that fees of engineers and lawyers be determined with the approval of the Circuit Court en banc. Present district which already have made such contracts would not be affected, and the provision would have no effect on them.

It also requires that additional territory may be taken into a district only on petition of a majority of the property owners of the area to be included. Another change is the provision that the report of commissioners contain an index of all the names of property owners. In present districts, where benefits have been assessed, it has been impossible for a taxpayer to obtain information without a long delay due to the inefficient manner in which these records have been kept.

Adverse Chance of Repeal.

Under the substitute, taxpayers would have 30 days instead of 10 in which to file exceptions to the report of commissioners, and change of venue and appeal would be allowed as in other civil cases.

Opponents of the Ralph law are hopeful that the Senate will refuse the committee substitute and will pass the original bill which provides only for repeal with a saving clause to protect creditors.

However, the last minute push of legislation in which the bill has been placed due to the inaction of the Senate Judiciary Committee militates against the chance of repeal.

COALE OPPOSES FRANCHISE GRANT TO STREET CARS

Democratic Nominee for Aldermanic President Denounces City's Lack of Control Over Utilities.

ALSO ASSAILS PLAN OF BENEFIT DISTRICTS

Asserts Street Improvements Should Be Paid for By Bonds—For Permanent Condemnation Board

Ralph W. Coale, Democratic nominee for President of the Board of Aldermen, opening his campaign for election last night, declared he would oppose granting of any franchise to the Public Service Co., "which would deprive our city of all right of regulation of street car service, fares, where cars should stop, when tracks could be torn up and abandoned."

He said he was opposed to the way the city had operated with public utilities, and the lack of control it has over them, and declared he never would surrender to the State any more control over them. He recalled the action of J. K. Newman's organization, which controls the street car companies here and in Kansas City, in "contracting with Kansas City for a certain fare if a franchise were granted, and promptly after the grant receiving an order from the State Public Service Commission to abolish the contract, and immediately did so."

Coale spoke at a mass meeting of the John T. Halloran for Alderman Club of the Twenty-sixth Ward at Cabanne Library. He was nominated without opposition in last Friday's primary, when Walter J. G. Neun, incumbent, defeated Jules R. Field, Mayor Miller's secretary, for the Republican nomination for aldermanic president.

Condemn Benefit Plan.

The Republican administration was condemned by Coale for the system of charging property throughout a benefit district set up. Coale said a commission for part of the cost of land taken under condemnation for street and other improvements. The 1914 Charter provided for this.

Coale said the system was unknown during the last Democratic administration, which ended in 1909. Coale advocated instead payment for such improvements entirely from bond issue, on the theory they were of city-wide benefit and would last for future generations, which should help pay for them.

Field had recommended the same thing and Neun has declared the system should be changed. There has been much agitation against the system among property owners.

The practice of appointing a separate group of commissioners in each condemnation, at the pay of $5 a day each, was criticized by Coale, who said it resulted in tying up affected property for years, ruining business establishments. He asserted that some commissioners prolonged their meetings just to stay on the payroll.

As a remedy, Coale proposed legislation to authorize a permanent commission appointed by the Circuit Judges in general terms, to be paid as they complete each undertaking at a rate to be fixed by the Court in accordance with the work involved. He said two of the commissioners should have at least 10 years' experience in the real estate business and the other the same experience in the construction business.

Similar suggestions for a permanent commission have been made repeatedly in recent years by city officials and others.

Neglect of River Front.

"I charge the Republican administration, which has had control of all branches of our municipal government for 22 years, with gross neglect and bad business judgment in neglecting our river front. As a result, property front Sixth street east has declined in value to the extent that nearly every parcel of property between Washington avenue and Market street, east of Sixth street, can be sold for less than it is assessed for, and vacancies are everywhere, with prospects of the values in this blighted district going lower unless something is done."

"The city, of course, will lose a tremendous amount in these values down the line. My remedy is for the city to purchase all land front Third street east to the wharf, between Washington avenue and Market street, and convert it into free parking space. I believe, with the completion of Gravois boulevard and North Twelfth boulevard, both extending to Third street, that values of real estate will be restored to a large extent, as people will pass through this now abandoned district. Consequently business should revive in the eastern section of our city. I believe certain of the streets in one loop district, between Twelfth boulevard and North Twelfth boulevard, should be one-way streets, in order that going and coming from the Third street parking district would be easy and free. I believe all parking east of Twelfth boulevard in the loop district should be absolutely abandoned."

"I pledge my best efforts to bring about parking relief and the consequent rejuvenation of the eastern part of our city. The cost of the land in the parking district I have laid out would be approximately $4,500,000, which, of course, should be paid by bond issue with very distant amortization."

Coale announced that his campaign would consist of constructive things for which he was prepared to offer remedies. He related that his family had resided in St. Louis for about 150 years and that he was educated at St. Louis University.

He recalled that he represented the Twenty-eighth Ward in the old House of Delegates in 1905-06, in the second Wells Democratic administration. In that office, he went to the introduction of the original bill providing for the Municipal Bridge and he successfully fought a combine in the House in passing a bill for the Manufacturers' Railway. The franchise admitting the forerunner of the Illinois Terminal System to St. Louis was adopted largely through his efforts, Coale said.

He also participated in the establishment of the City Art Museum in Forest Park and the adoption of the city forestry plan, providing for trees along the streets.

The election will be April 7, three weeks hence.

CITY OFFICIALS UNAWARE OF FRANCHISE BILL

Mayor, Nolte and Neun Say They Hadn't Heard of "Terminable Permits" Measure in Legislature.

RESEMBLES ONE CAULFIELD VETOED

Purpose Is to Prevent Home Rule for Another 50 Years—Plans to Include Kansas City, Too.

Mayor Miller and his two colleagues on the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, Comptroller Nolte and President Neun of the Board of Aldermen, today said they had not been notified or consulted as to the "terminable permits" street railway franchise bill for St. Louis, now pending in the State Legislature.

The Mayor and Comptroller said the matter had not been mentioned to them by Hon. W. Blodgett, legislative agent for the city government at Jefferson City. Blodgett, when seen at Jefferson City, said he remembered having brought up the measure at a recent meeting of the Board of Estimate, and that no opposition was expressed by the three members.

"I recall," Blodgett said, "that City Counselor Muench was present at the meeting, and said he had gone over the bill, and found it to be an enabling act—Mr. Muench said, as nearly as I can recall his words, that the measure might be a handy thing to have around some time. The board took no vote on the bill, and gave me no instructions regarding it, but my impression was that the members were neither opposed to the bill nor strongly for it."

Mayor Miller Surprised.

Mayor Miller said he was surprised to learn of the measure which was described in yesterday's Post-Dispatch as repeating most of the features of the terminable permits bill. That measure, applicable to St. Louis, was passed by the 1929 Legislature and was vetoed by Gov. Caulfield as "an unnecessary and unwise invasion of the charter-making power of the city."

The Mayor said that, not having discussed the bill with any representatives of the Public Service Co., he had no objection to it. He said he did not recall having heard about the bill, or any other local transportation measure except the bus control bill. He said he would not express an opinion on the bill without having consulted the City Counselor.

Neun declared he would oppose any measure similar to the terminable permits bill of two years ago.

"I have not heard of this bill before," he said, "but if it is a terminable permit plan, such as the Governor vetoed in 1929, which would give Jefferson City say anything about our franchise rights, I am against it. I am for home rule of utilities."

Counselor Muench, seen at Jefferson City, said he had not seen the text of the bill, and had no recollection of having heard the measure discussed. Therefore, he said, he could express no opinion upon it.

The pending bill, introduced by Senator Kinney, was drawn up by representatives of the St. Louis Public Service Co., owning the St. Louis street car lines, and is advocated by the company's lobbyists. As introduced, it applied only to St. Louis, but amendments proposed in the Senate Committee on Municipal Corporations, which has reported the bill favorably, would enlarge its scope to include Kansas City. The Kansas City Public Service Co., owning street car and bus lines, is under the same holding company as the St. Louis car and bus companies, the City Utilities Co.

Old Subterfuge.

The bill would authorize the Board of Aldermen to issue a terminable permit for a period up to 50 years. It provides for a local transit commission, to be appointed by the Mayor and to regulate the local transportation system. This commission would have the regulatory powers now exercised by the State Public Service Commission. But the city commission would have no regulatory transportation just as the State commission now does, in accordance with the decision of the United States Supreme Court.

While this appears to grant home rule, experience has shown that a municipality cannot exercise authority over fares where the street car company has a franchise. If the city should attempt to fix a rate of fare, the street car company would appeal to the courts, and would be upheld in the demand for a rate figured to yield a return on a prescribed valuation. This valuation would be fixed on the "reproduction new" basis.

FUNDS SHRINKING FAST, SAYS RELIEF COMMITTEE HEAD

Campaign Starts Next Week to Raise $300,000 Said to Be Minimum Absolutely Needed.

NUMBER NEEDING AID IS NOT DECREASING

Group Has Paid $122,484 to Six Co-Operating Societies—Spent $47,418 to Give Jobs to 630.

Citizens' Committee on Relief and Employment, financed by a $300,000 appropriation from municipal funds, is confronted with the prospect that a balance of only $110,000 will remain in its treasury April 1. It was announced today in connection with the campaign to be undertaken next week to raise $300,000 by popular subscription.

In a statement outlining expenditures so far, Scott R. de Kins, director-general of the committee, said $122,484 has been paid to the six agencies co-operating with the committee in supplying relief; $47,418 to 630 men placed in special jobs on municipal projects, and administration expense has been $4444. March appropriations are $100,000 to the co-operating relief agencies and $14,000 for the special city workers.

Total expenditures at the end of this month will be $288,347. "This will leave a balance of $11,652," said de Kins. "In other words, the money possible has gone toward the relief of families facing starvation, eviction, utter destitution.

"On April 1 we must be prepared to tell the six agencies who are giving the actual relief just how much of an addition to their own expenditures they may make for the coming month. Unless another $300,000 is given by the citizens of St. Louis, we must close up and let about 5000 families shift for themselves. It is anyone's guess what the consequence will be."

Six Agencies Co-Operate. The principal part of direct relief measures of the committee, as has been told, is conducted through the co-operating established agencies: Provident Association, St. Vincent de Paul Society, Salvation Army, Red Cross, Jewish Federation and Bureau for Homeless Men. From its application bureau at 2023 Washington avenue the committee has referred needy persons to one of these agencies, later reimbursing the agency.

The committee has employed $35,000 on special city projects paying the $5 a day and giving them an average of five days work a week. Those selected for these

Under the redistricting as proposed, 10 members of the Republican committee, four Aldermen and one prospective Alderman would find themselves living in wards other than those from which elected. Because of the upheaval of political machinery a redistricting would cause the special committee some inconvenience. Wimer wanted to pass the ordinance quickly, before protests that might develop could become effective. Politicians generally have recognized that some sort of redistricting was desirable and they have thought the best time to adopt one would be now, well in advance of the 1932 general and 1933 municipal elections, so as to allow time

One Report Is That Lloyd George Will Enter the Labor Cabinet as Lord Privy Seal.

INSURGENTS ACTIVE IN ALL PARTIES

Baldwin, Conservative Leader, Makes Bitter Attack on Rothermere and Beaverbrook Press.

By the Associated Press.
LONDON, March 18.—Stories to-day of new British party alignments, which would lead David Lloyd George to the Labor fold, and Sir John Simon to the Conservative standard greatly excited political circles.

The reports, published in the Daily Sketch, appeared to be the result of defeat of the Labor Government Monday night by four votes on a minor clause of the electoral reform bill, principally because Simon and 10 fellow Liberals refused to follow Lloyd George in voting with the Ministry.

The Daily Sketch says that Mr. Lloyd George, disgusted with what he regards as the party's conduct, in maintaining the Liberal Labor alliance, would enter the Labor Cabinet as Lord Privy Seal, succeeding Vernon Hartshorn, who died a few days ago, and Hartshorn's predecessor, J. H. Thomas.

The post carries with it an unofficial unemployment portfolio, which would give the Liberal leader opportunity to advance his pet schemes on that subject.

Liberals, Conservatives and Labor party alike are badly split, with the leadership of the nominal heads of the parties in question by insurgent factions of each.

Break in Liberal Ranks.

Only 19 Liberals voted with Lloyd George on the electoral reform measure Monday night; 23 were absent and unpaired, six were present against the bill, and 11 voted against it.

Sir Archibald Sinclair resigned today as chief whip of the Liberal party, and it is believed he took the step to show his disapproval of the action of the Liberals in the

For Repeal of "Specific Grounds" Law.
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
Y OUR editorial of March 12, condemning the bill now pending in the Legislature to repeal the law passed in 1925, which requires the existence of specific grounds for a new trial in criminal cases, is somewhat surprising in view of the Post-Dispatch's traditional policy of defending the civil liberties and constitutional rights of the individual. In your zeal to deprive the gauntlet of a rack-steer of advantages, you have evidently overlooked the fact that the present law perpetrates a great injustice on those accused of crime, including casual offenders and innocent suspects, as well as professional criminals.

You surely will admit that every man, whether innocent or guilty, is entitled to a fair trial in accordance with the law. It is to correct errors which do not allow a fair and legal trial that the bill to a high degree is allowed. Under the 1925 statute, an error may be committed in a criminal trial. It may be an error of the utmost gravity, depriving the accused of his most fundamental constitutional rights, and it may result in the conviction of an innocent man, but a higher court may be powerless to correct the injustice, however glaring, merely because through negligence, incompetence, oversight or from any other cause, the defendant's attorney failed to discover the particular error within the short time allowed by law (10 days at most) or failed to specify it in his motion for a new trial. Thus justice may be defeated by a technicality, and man's most sacred rights irrevocably lost through a single oversight of his lawyer.

The existing law does not seriously hamper the organized and professional criminal element whose highly trained criminal lawyers are sufficiently astute to pick out all the errors within the time allowed for motions for a new trial. But it operates to the prejudice of the poor man accused of crime who cannot afford to employ experts in criminal law.

The 1925 law was an ill advised and pernicious enactment, and the bill for its repeal, which seeks to correct an injustice and safeguard the constitutional guarantees of a fair trial, deserves the treatment at the hands of a champion of liberty and justice such as the Post-Dispatch has always professed to be, than to be stigmatized as the product of a clique of shyster criminal lawyers.

Mr. Neun's Nomination.
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

WALTER J. G. NEUN'S nomination again proves the value of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch to the people of St. Louis. You stated the facts and brought to our attention the necessity to vote for a principle and a good man, without any worry of the political machine.

I want to compliment your paper on the editorials and cartoons in favor of Neun and the free thinking people of St. Louis.

The Argument Against Birth Control.
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

WELL not one some of these indignant anti-birth control writers use better arguments? Such ridiculously weak, self-righteous gestures as those that have appeared here recently can never hope to prevent great changes in social behavior whenever they occur. The argument to all "clean and decent minded" people, the lamentable case of the supposedly numerous one-child families and the like should not dissuade the Post-Dispatch from openly choosing its stand. Nor have similar bits of reasoning ever effectively stood in the way of social progress when the point at issue could be handled very well without unnecessary moral interpretation.

The church opposes birth control with its blue banner of morality. Even the unattached social conservative predicts certain terrible results if birth control generally becomes entrenched. The bones to score off supporters by crying, "Free love!" Have these persons never realized the reality of change until they are swept off their feet by its movement? Can they not see the true nature of a situation unless they are born into it?

Madison's Sherlocks Go Modern.
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

WIRTS APPARENTLY has come at last to Madison County, Illinois, but it is not dressed in the old fashioned garb of yesteryear. Announcement comes from the Board of Supervisors of plans for the formation of a specific crime prevention bureau, and public-spirited citizens have subscribed $7500 to get things going. An office is to be set up in the courthouse where the bureau will collect photographs of criminals and make bullet tests (ballistics). Among others on the commission to carry on the "investigations and research" are the State Attorney and the Sheriff. Madison County citizens are bold and brave, and I am glad to see that the master minds are about to approach the task from a thoroughly scientific angle.

READER.

WHO WILL SERVE THE PUBLIC?

The scandal of the Grand National Bank bonds and their recapture by paying a reward has been sufficiently exposed to show that all those who were associated with it served their own interests. Mr. Forstel, who was first apprised that the bonds would be returned for a price, was serving his clients. Mr. Myers, who attended several conferences with intermediaries, was serving his insurance company. Mr. Lemon, who negotiated with the thieves and then stood upon his constitutional rights when called by the grand jury, was serving himself. Even the Circuit Attorney, whose advice was sought by people fearful of the law in such a transaction, says he had reasons of his own for not notifying the police.

Nobody has so far served the public, except of course that the police have worked on the case. The peril to society could not be greater. Here is a scandal in which crime achieved the respectability of business. The stolen bonds were restored for 15 percent of their value, or $140,000, and no questions asked. If the matter is dropped there, the danger of such a precedent is much too obvious for comment. As we have already warned the people of St. Louis, thieves will emerge from darkness everywhere and come where they can ply their vocation in the light. That gulf which lies between the world of law and the underworld will have been bridged by social sanction, and the thieves' market will be wide open for business.

The Post-Dispatch refuses to believe that St. Louis is going to tolerate anything of the sort. We cannot believe that the instinct of self-preservation has so far been dulled that we are to turn the keys of the city over to bandits, to social enemies of the law, and to self-seekers who care nothing for the security of life and property so long as they serve their own interests. The grand jury and the Bar Association alone can save us from such a reign of terror. The grand jury has no reasons of its own for not resolving to stick to it until the whole story is brought out. The grand jury is a device of society to serve in exactly such crises. Its sole obligation is to the community. It is a segment of society itself, a powerful weapon of the law which is neither seeking office nor serving itself. If the grand jury defaults in this grave responsibility, where are the people to turn for protection? If all those who are related to this great drama are to sacrifice society to self, who is to serve the public?

The responsibility of the Bar Association is scarcely less than that of the grand jury. The practice of law is a privilege conferred upon the individual by society itself. Is the Bar Association prepared to say that society should so commission and arm its own enemies? It cannot say so. The decent element in the profession is compelled to move for the disbarment of all those whose practices have brought the whole profession into disrepute. This is the true function of any association of lawyers. If it is not, they would just as well meet at the thieves' market and agree upon the scale of prices to be paid for the return of stolen goods. The Post-Dispatch is in no trepidation of spirit as to what the Bar Association of St. Louis is going to do. Its fear is that neither the grand jury nor the Bar Association realizes the extent to which all other safeguards of society have failed.

There are powerful influences at work to hush the whole hideous matter up. Their very power and persistence prove the public necessity to have the story come out. All law in its final analysis is in the hands of the people themselves. One of our favorite inscriptions for capitols and courthouses is that the will of the people is the supreme law. The will of the people of St. Louis must at length say whether or not robbery is to be recognized as a business. The grand jury and the Bar Association must speak for us when nobody else will.

DR. NIEBUHR AND MR. COOLIDGE.

"The sayings of Polly Ananias." The speaker was not some political partisan, but a distinguished minister of the gospel, the Rev. Dr. Reinhold Niebuhr, editor of World Tomorrow, who is the noonday speaker this week at Christ Church Cathedral.

Mr. Coolidge, he says, "lives in the nineteenth century." When the ex-President says "the one thing we must learn is not to interfere with business," the professor from Union Theological Seminary dissenters with vigor. The man who can look about him and make such a statement has a closed mind, is unwilling to keep up with the world, is living in another time. That for Calvin.

Dr. Niebuhr knows, as the Post-Dispatch put it yesterday in its leading editorial, that "we have had Tess government in business' and 'now look at us.'" We need constructive thinking, not the discredited philosophy of that fool's paradise which went before. We need, too, more such truth tellers as Dr. Niebuhr.

ST. PATRICK'S DAY IN CARSON CITY.

Nevada had her golden age and silver splendor, but the Comstock lode pinched out and now the lion and the lizard keep the courts where Virginia City once drank deep; or, switching from Omar to Byron, the flower and the fruit are gone. No abandoned Connecticut farm knows quieter nights than Tonopah, and the Goldfield Hotel, once the desert's riotous inn, looks out upon languorous leagues of sand. But Nevada still has Reno—a mere meal ticket, to be sure, as compared to the vanished Eldorados—and she's going to keep it. The Legislature has passed a bill, unanimously in the House, with but one dissenting vote in the Senate, reducing the residential probation from three months to six weeks for emigrants seeking divorce. Thus the greedy thralls of Arkansas and Idaho have been deftly parried. Moreover, an attorney's fee of $35 has been fixed as the maximum price in uncontested cases, and another inducement is offered in the privilege accorded the plaintiff of omitting details unless defendant demands a bill of particulars. What about the Governor? Will he sign the bill? He says he will; says so in no uncertain tones, and we believe him. And, speaking of history's repetitive penchant, Carson City crushes the solar plexus of Little Rock and Boise on St. Patrick's day, 1931, even as Flitshammon finished Corbett, in the same place, with the same blow, on the same day, in 1897.

REVISING THEWARDS.

If, as is claimed for it, the proposed redistricting of the city's 23 wards will equalize their voting strength, the revision will be of much value. However, it was not drafted in accord with the spirit of the City Charter, which calls for wards consisting of compact, contiguous territories, as far as practicable, within straight lines.

The new ward map is a jigsaw puzzle of odd-shaped units. The First Ward, for instance, is square enough but for an excrescence shaped like an anvil at one corner. The long, narrow downtown wards, instead of undergoing consolidation, have merely been attenuated. The Eleventh is left as it has been, like a flight of stairs. The Thirteenth hooks a claw around a shoulder of the Fourteenth. The Nineteenth, long and narrow, looks like what remained when the puzzle maker dropped his saw; the Twenty-second is about the same and so is the Twenty-third. The poor Twenty-fifth and Twenty-eighth straddle Forest Park; these two wards, heretofore confined to the West End, ramble from Delmar boulevard to Arsenal street.

The declaration of an aldermanic committee which prepared the revision that it tried its best may be accepted at face value. The difficulties of laying out new lines in a going community may be recognized, but it still appears that the Aldermen would have done a far better service to the city by offering an altogether new layout of compact, straight wards. Chairman Wimer was frank enough to admit that the revisers were careful to throw no more politicians out of their old wards than possible. But the logical and fair thing would have been to forget the old boundaries, the old political setup, the old alliances altogether, and to make a scientific plan with the aid of the Election Board. As the plan stands, it is a too tedious device for getting around politicians.

PITTSBURG'S GRADED TAX LAW.

Charles E. Williams, who is prominent in the movement to stabilize downtown property values, recently pointed out that Pittsburg in the last decade spent $48,000,000 for new construction in its downtown section, as against $22,000,000 in St. Louis. Joseph Forshaw writes us that Mr. Williams failed to state the reason for Pittsburg's superior building activities, "which is more important and by far more noteworthy than anything he said." It is Pittsburg's graded tax law.

This law, a modified form of single tax, went into effect in 1913. It provided that the tax on buildings, as compared with that on land, should be reduced 10 percent for the years 1914 and 1915, and an additional 10 percent thereafter, until the tax on buildings became 50 percent of that charged on land. In 1925 the full reduction on buildings was reached and it is now proposed that reductions continue to the vanishing point. The effect of this law is to discourage speculative "building of land". As Mr. Forshaw puts it, "One cannot afford to keep a vacant lot in downtown Pittsburg," nor can one even keep it with a ramshackle 50-year-old building, as in St. Louis."

We have several times referred to Pittsburg's excellent tax law, and suggested its possible adoption in St. Louis, and the subject continues to be timely in view of the need of the city for more revenue and the inequalities of our antiquated tax system. In a bulletin authorized by the Allied Boards of Trade of Allegheny County, it is said: "Owing to the stimulus of this law, the amount of Pittsburg building permits for 1929 increased threefold over 1914 to 1928, inclusive, exceeded those of her competitive cities as follows: 25 per cent over New York; 57 per cent over St. Louis; 66 per cent over Philadelphia; 66 per cent over Cleveland; 87 per cent over Buffalo; 136 per cent over Detroit; 238 per cent over Baltimore."

Although the Pittsburg law was enacted over violent opposition, it has come to be acclaimed. When a movement was put on foot to repeal it, the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce and other civic agencies came to its rescue. In the Pennsylvania city it is called the "most rational system of taxation in the country," and a manufacturer says of it: "Pittsburg manufacturers have a tremendous advantage over manufacturers in other states." Enormous tax savings have been made on all classes of improved property under its provisions.

We suggest that the Progress Council, now engaged in studying downtown problems, send a delegation to Pittsburg to study the graded tax law.

DR. NIEBUHR AND MR. COOLIDGE.

A TRICKY BILL.

State Senator Michael Kinney of St. Louis has introduced a franchise bill in the Legislature which was drafted in the interest of the St. Louis Public Service Co. and which proposes to create a municipal transit commission to supersede the State Public Service Commission in regulation of transportation.

The bill is another disguised attempt of the promoters of the street car deal here to wrest a new long-term franchise from an unwilling Board of Aldermen. The trick this time is to make the Aldermen and the public believe that the creation of a municipal transit commission would result in "home rule," that is, local control over transportation. The Post-Dispatch has pointed out many times that no measure of home rule is possible while franchises exist. Although the Legislature may legally delegate the regulatory power now vested in the State commission to a city commission, that city commission would have to regulate the street car company exactly as the State commission now does. It would be a mere change in name without alteration of the fact that regulation would still be based on the preposterous reproduction new theory of valuation, and, as at present, no order of the commission could be final until it was approved by the Federal courts.

Senator Kinney is a lawyer and should know all of this. Therefore, the question arises: Is Mr. Kinney representing the promoters of the street car deal, or is he representing the public of St. Louis? It would appear that he is representing the promoters and is aiding in the attempt to deceive the public.

NAMING THE TURKS.

It seems that the Turks would have got around to providing themselves with family names long before now. However, they have been going along all these years with only first names, occasionally raised to glittering distinction by honorary titles. It required the edict of their dictator to equip them with surnames, the law to take effect in 1922. For centuries most of the women have been known simply as Fatima and the men have been addressed generally as Mustapha. As a result, many a Sultan must have found himself reduced to the impolite expedient of pointing when addressing individual members of his harem. Similarly, many an army officer must have had to shout the Turkish equivalent for "Hey, you!" when ordering a buck private in the rear rank to report for kitchen police. Turkey may have been the "sick man of Europe" all this while because everybody was practically anonymous. After 1922, with the honor of the family name to embellish, her citizens are likely to show a burst of progress.

Why Banks Fail

Banking laws adequate to make system virtually fool-proof, if obeyed both in spirit and in letter; depositories evade rules by lending to subsidiary companies formed by themselves; behind every bank failure is probably a criminal act, writer says; enough regulation already exists, and what is needed now is some prosecutions.

Chester Crowell in the New Freeman.

THE banking laws of this country are reasonable, and they go very far toward pointing out what should be done to make banking soundly founded on sound business principles. They were intended to make banking reasonably fool-proof, as it should be. They not only prohibit dishonesty but they go much farther and prescribe wise rules for safety. Let me cite just one to prove the point: A bank is not permitted to lend more than 10 per cent of its capital and surplus to any one borrower, regardless of the security he offers. Now you can readily see that it would not be dishonest per se to violate that rule; but it would be unwise. Ten loans of $10,000 each year after for a bank than one loan of $100,000. The law tells the banker that this is so, and it would tell him much other information for his guidance.

It would not be an exaggeration, I think, to say that when the letter and spirit of the banking laws are followed, banking is actually a fool-proof operation. Even when the mere letter is followed rather dumbly, there is very little danger except under unusual and rather improbable circumstances. I feel confident in saying that not many bankers would question the preceding statements. Yet we often hear upwards of 500 bank failures annually during roaring prosperity. A sudden collapse of a boom period, such as we have recently experienced, will bring the bank failures up closer to the outrageous tally of 1909 annually. There are only about 25,000 banks in the whole country. That mortality rate, under the special safeguards surrounding this business, is simply criminal.

And by that, you may ask, do I mean to say that bank failures are more often than not due to criminal violations of the banking laws? Not precisely, I mean to say that, entirely too many bankers do not know things they advise their clients not to do. They speculate. They seek larger profits than conservative banking rules would permit them to earn. They form subsidiary companies and sell securities to them. And they lend money to these companies on the securities in question. This is the sure path to frozen loans. Moreover, it is unsound banking.

What we usually lack is vigorous prosecution of these crimes. But in what realm, let me ask, do we not lack vigorous prosecution of crime? The only one I can think of at the moment is parking automobiles in front of fire hydrants. That is a criminal offense. I have heard of no officer of the bank, I may not lawfully borrow his funds, then I am in danger the moment I do so. But if I may borrow through a corporation, it becomes possible for me to concoct all sorts of explanations about the honesty of my intentions. The failure thus can often be made to appear as an "act of God."

It is as though you sent me to sell your horse, and I sold it to my brother for 100 bushels of wheat, and then sold the wheat to my other brother for 100 bushels of oats, and so on, keeping up the trading until finally I brought you a dozen eggs for your horse. You would know that you were being cheated, and yet I might have a long story to tell about how I really thought on the date that I accepted the wheat that it was worth twice

THAT 73-year-old Representative from Colorado, Edwin D. Taylor, who has been elected for 12 consecutive terms to the House as a Democrat, has just completed a task he set for himself years ago. Since he was a young man the phrase "wild and woolly" has been used which never failed to tickle him. And occasional references in Eastern and Northern newspapers to the so-called "kaleidoscopic politics" of the West have resounded.

He is fond of repeating that old saying: "The timid never started West and the weak died on the way."

More Than Pink Tea
WHAT THIS COUNTRY NEEDS.
By Jay Franklin. (Covici-Friede,
New York City. $3.50.)

WHAT America needs, we have been facetiously informed, is good five-cent cigar; and some millions of frenequeen citizens would add, maybe a cold glass of beer or two. But what the suggestion was intended to be, it's quite as intelligent a solution of our truly terrifying problem as any that's far conceived, so far as we know, or likely to be conceived in the gigantic intellects of our great business men and their lackeys, the great statesmen.

Clearly the big house is on fire and nobody home. In such a situation it would not be strange if even the humblest neighbor should come running with rusty buckets, tin cans, watering pots, or, in some case, even with teacups brimming with the pink ichor of the parlor intellectual. For it pains us that the big house with the basement is in its basement and nobody home is really everybody's house, though in "normal" times this would scarcely be suspected by an observer from Mars.

Under the circumstances, perhaps one of the best signs of the times, because the most alarming, is the rapidly increasing number of books dealing with the social predicament which the world now finds itself with its real causes, and with the desperate necessity of getting busy with the remodeling process unless we want to go through with what some rather intelligent people believe we are destined to go through anyway.

Even if we cannot escape the logical results of a world-physics that began with the Industrial Revolution, and has produced so many symptoms of acute hysteria, and even of indubitable madness, in practically every field of human activity, it is all to the good that tentative plans for social reorganization should be offered even half-baked ones. If for no other reason than to advertise the idea that the present scheme is fundamentally sound for the absurdity involved, does it differ greatly from that of the Amos and Andy scheme by which the catfish were to be fed to the cats and the cats to the catfish, that the owners of them may have a perpetual motion mechanism increasingly productive of fun, world without end?

Of the books bearing on the subject that have appeared recently, none is better calculated to shock the reader awake than Jay Franklin's "What This Country Needs." Some may be persuaded to believe that he has arrived at the scene with an impressive show of facts, figures, and other odds and ends. Others may feel that he has both his nobs and his tailors to accuse him of rushing out of the parlour with a cup of pink-tea. Jay Franklin is a pseudonym, and it is stated that TAX returns made in 1930 reveal incomes that are beyond human comprehension. The total is over $141,000,000,000 gross, and $35,000,000,000 net. Four-fifths belongs to individuals and one-fifth to corporations. About 4,000,000 individuals and 500,000 corporations make a million.

Thirty-six million persons gainfully employed make no returns. Their income would increase the total national gross income. These persons contributed as employees and consumers to the taxable income. More than one-half the net individual income is supplied by persons who have less than $2000 annually. The people still own the country.

These figures show not only the stupendous earning power of the nation, but they show conclusively the fallacy of thinking the Government can be supported by taxing the rich. A national income so large as ours can only be secured by combined effort of all the people.

SODERHOLM SWEDISH RYE—the rye bread with a national reputation has become Saint Louis' favorite in less than two weeks! Its popularity is sure to bring imitations: Substitutes will be offered that you will be told are as good as Soderholm.

But let no one ever sell you something they tell you is like Soderholm... or as good as Soderholm. No other rye can have the same nut-sweet taste, the Old Swedish flavor of this famous bread.

No other bread can approach Soderholm in quality because there is only one genuine Soderholm Swedish Rye bread.

The Soderholm recipe is restricted to leading bakers throughout the United States... one in each city. We are the only bakers in Saint Louis who know the secret formula that puts Soderholm Swedish Rye bread far ahead of any other rye baked—literally, in a class by itself.

Our recipe for Soderholm Swedish Rye came to us from August Soderholm, who learned his trade in his native land. His rye bread was so superior Walter Ingersoll, manager of the Household Finance Co., 520 North Grand boulevard, and two clerks were held up yesterday by an armed man, who took $200 and fled.

"Sorry to do this, but I need the money," the robber remarked, according to Ingersoll.

Miss Ruth Johnson and Mary Carroll of 4022 McPherson avenue, and Miss Estelle Vulen, 1305 South Twelfth street, were walking on Olive street last night, when a hatless young man armed with a revolver forced them into Culver Way and robbed them. Miss Catherine Kennedy, 3452 Park avenue, was walking in the 4300 block of Easton avenue last night, when a man held her purse, containing $5, and fled.

George Kerlick, 4224 Humphrey street, thinks he wounded a burglar whom he fired twice with a shotgun last midnight. Kerlick said he awoke to find a man reaching beneath his pillow. The man fled, and Kerlick got his shotgun from a closet and fired at the intruder, cried out as he fled through the yard, Kerlick reported.

A man giving his name as Roy Jones, 5905 Michigan avenue, reported to police that he was robbed of $250 by some one who entered a room he occupied at 2328 Olive street, Monday night.

Purported Eye-Witness Story Of Killing of Francisco Madero Published by Mexico City Paper

Excelsior Lays Shooting of President and Vice President to Huerta—Quotes Reporter as Saying Cardenas Shot Former.

By the Associated Press.
MEXICO CITY, March 18.—Excelsior, in its fifteenth anniversary edition today publishes what it says is a solution and eye-witness account of the mysterious killing of President Francisco I. Madero, father of the Mexican revolution, 18 years ago.

The official version of the affair, issued by the provisional President, Victoriano Huerta, two hours after Madero died, was that Madero and the Vice President, Jose Maria Pino Suarez, were shot and killed when a band of would-be rescuers attacked the guard which was taking them from the national palace to the penitentiary.

Excelsior lays the death of the two men at the feet of Huerta and his officers and charges three men, Francisco Cardenas, and two guerrillas, Pimienta and Figueiros, all now believed dead, as being the actual slayers. Jose Pachí, chief guard of the penitentiary, claimed to have witnessed the shooting and it is his story the paper tells, commenting that it has been withheld until now because its reporter feared he would pay for the disclosure with his life.

Story of the Reporter.
Leopoldo Toquero Dímaris, an Excelsior reporter, the night of Feb. 22, 1913, was informed by the editor of El Individuo, for which he was working then, that Madero and Pino Suarez, imprisoned by Huerta in the National Palace, were to be removed to the penitentiary, and he and another reporter, Carlos Serrano, were sent to cover the story.

They went to the National Palace and kept a lonely vigil until midnight, when they saw two automobiles left with two occupants whom they recognized as Madero and Pino Suarez. They ran after the car and were not far behind it when it reached the penitentiary. It was pitch dark, and suddenly, a cordon of soldiers with fixed bayonets blocked their way and despite their entreaties, were let them go no further.

While they argued, they heard six shots, and then a regular fusillade. The police still stopped them, so they went back to the palace, where Huerta, dressed in a black sweater and cap, was with his cabinet. It was almost 1 o'clock and Huerta pronounced a statement. At 2:30 he came out and told them that Madero and Pino Suarez had been killed near the penitentiary when an armed group tried to rescue them from a military escort. Huerta said that one of the attackers was killed, two were wounded, and the automobiles ruined.

Cardenas the Slayer, Guard Says.
Toquero, who did not believe Huerta, said he got the real story the next morning from the chief guard, Jose Pachí, whom he talked with by chance, and his assistant, Rojas. Pachí told him that at midnight two cars came to the gates and Francisco I. Cardenas got out.

"He told me in a low voice to order him loudly to go to the rear entrance," Toquero quoted Pachí. "I was at the point of telling him there was no rear entrance when he menaced me with a gun and so I complied in a loud voice so that all could hear. It was plainly a staged act. Cardenas got back into the car and went around to the darkened rear. Rojas and I watched and saw him get out and then ordered the President to accompany him into the penitentiary, although there was no entrance there."

Shot Through Back of Head.
As the President stepped out Cardenes drew his gun like a flash and shot the President through the back of his head. Pino Suarez was getting out and hearing the shot he uttered a cry but Pimienta and Figueiros drew together and closed in on the fallen president.

SURETY EXECUTIVE HANGS SELF
By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, March 18.—Dr. Benjamin F. Battin, 59, an old-time vice president of the National Surety Co., hanged himself in his Eighth Avenue Hotel room yesterday. He left four sealed envelopes. Mrs. Battin told police her husband had been brooding because he thought his contract with the surety company, expiring April 1, would not be renewed.

Dr. Battin, formerly a Swarthmore College professor, was sent to Germany during the World War on a special mission for the Red Cross. Last of Chippewa Tribe Dies.
ESCANABA, Mich., March 18.—Jimmie Kishketog, last of the Chippewa Indian tribe that once dominated a vast territory bordering Munising Bay, died last week in the State Hospital at Newberry. A movement is under way to bring the remains back to Munising for burial at the desecred Indian village where hundreds of his forefathers are interred. Kishketog was once a great hunter.

Plane Burns, Pilot Unhurt.
DAYTON, O., March 18.—Lieut. H. G. Crocker, assistant chief of the power and engine maintenance division at Wright Field, escaped injury when a Kestrel bombing plane he was piloting on flight test burst into flames at an altitude of 1500 feet. Nosing the plane to earth, Crocker barely had time to land and leap to the ground when the entire plane became a mass of flames and was destroyed.

NEW WARNING ISSUED TO CUT
WHEAT PRODUCTION THIS YEAR
unless There Is Sharp Reductions Liberal Exports Will Be Necessary to Avoid Congestion,

the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 18.—The Agriculture Department announced today that unless there should be a sharp reduction in the 1931 domestic wheat crop, liberal exports will be necessary to avoid market congestion next summer.

"Present prospects, however, indicate that world prices will rise sufficiently by next summer to permit liberal exports from the United States at that time, except at prices below current levels in the United States markets."

The Grain Stabilization Corporation now is engaged in selling abroad not to exceed 35,000,000 bushels, and one of the reasons assigned was to provide additional terminal space at the seaboards for a new crop.

WALL STREET STOCK TRADE AGAIN LIGHT WITH PRICES BETTER LATE

Railroad Shares Drag the

but Midweek Business
Statistics Provide Support

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 18.—Bull forces prevailed in another highly professional speculative contest in today's stock market.

Bears sold rails during the morning, and the market was rather soggy for a time, but the midweek business statistics disclosed encouraging gains in steel mill production and electric power consumption, which gave speculators for the rise
the advantage.

Bears backed away during the last trading, and several issues gained 2 to 5 points, while Auburn shot up 8. Trading was in light volume, however, the day's transactions aggregating 2,000,000 shares, the lowest for a full session since

Such issues as U. S. Steel, Amer-ilar advance. Issues up about 4 to 5 included Allied Chemical, Eastman, Johns Manville, Case, Safeway and American Woolen preferred, the last named reaching new top territory. New York Central declined to a new low, only to rally and close with a net gain of about a point.

Foreign exchanges were mixed,

A particularly encouraging item in the weekly steel trade reviews was the statement by "Steel" that a leading United States Steel subsidiary will increase prices for bars, plates and shapes $1 a ton after April. The recent report that Carnegie Steel had posted an unchanged price schedule for the second quarter had caused considerable disappointment, but it appears that the current schedule will hold until April 1 only.

The Carnegie Steel Co. today announced that it will take contracts for second quarter delivery at 1.65 cents a pound up to April 1, and that after that date at 1.70 cents a pound, an advance of $1 a ton.

The automotive industry is still providing much of the impetus in the steel industry, with mills in the Cleveland and Chicago areas maintaining relatively the highest rate of output. Structural orders for March were up 125,000.

For second quarter delivery at 1.65
cents a pound up to April 1, and that after that date at 1.70 cents a pound, an advance of $1 a ton.

Call money was again abundant, and quoted at 1 per cent in the outside market. The bond market turned hesitant, however.

The weekly report of electric power consumption, covering the second week of March, showed a reduction of only 3.2 per cent from a year ago, the best consumption so far this year. Freight car loadings, as reported for the first week of March, showed a substantial rise from the preceding holiday week. The weekly petroleum statistics showed another discouraging increase in crude output, but the increase in stocks of gasoline in storage was the smallest in reports.

BOROTRA WINS SUTTER LOSES IN INDOOR TENNIS

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 18.—Clifford Sutter of New Orleans, inter-collegiate tennis champion and second seeded star, was eliminated from the indoor tennis championships today by Perrine G. Rockfall, eighth seeded player, in straight sets. The scores were 6-1, 6-2.

Sutter's defeat was entirely unexpected and was the first major upset of the tourney.

The victory sent Rockfall into the semifinals, where he probably will meet Jean Borotra, French Davis Cup player who still has his fourth round match to play.

Berkeley Bell of Dallas, Tex., the third seed American favorite, won his third round match easily today from Erdman Brandt of New York, 6-1, 6-2. The victory put him into the quarter finals, where he probably will meet Christian Boussus, France's young Davis Cup hopeful.

Jean Borotra of France defeated Frank Bowden, New York, 6-2, 6-2, in a fourth round match.

By Damon Kerby.

Head-headed, robust Patrick O'Shocker continued his march toward a shot at Jimmy Londos in a St. Louis ring by pinning Rudy Dusek before 885 customers at the Coliseum last night. The said customer paid exactly $10,885.60 for the privilege of watching the spectacle, according to figures announced by Commissioners Seneca C. Taylor and Sam K. Weil.

RUBE MARQUARD WINS $1000 SALARY SUIT

CHICAGO, March 18.—Rube Marquard, one of the pitchers of all time, won a $1,000 decision in Kenesaw M. Landis baseball court yesterday.

The commissioner reversed the ruling of the National Association of Professional Baseball Clubs in ordering the Jacksonville club to pay him for services in some players from Sept. 1, last, to June 1, 1931.

Marquard sold a player for cash after it had become apparent they started the bout ending in a draw. Incidentally, their bout finished about the best wrestling exhibition seen in St. Louis this season. It was a clean performance all the way through.

The main event was everything that the semifinal was not, in the way of abiding or lack of abiding by the commission rules; but, of course, the O'Shocker-Dusek bout, with its kicking and spurring, was the event that sent the customers howling. And make no mistake, it was an exciting event, only probably to a rousing round fight, if any.

Referee Warns in Vain.

There was not much to choose between O'Shocker and Dusek. The boys worked on the eye for an eye theory throughout, and for every punch and poke that Dusek landed, O'Shocker retaliated in turn.

Referee Cook warned both men after hitting with their fists, but both had continued to do so, at least in the eyes of the referee. After Cook called for hitting with a closed hand, the wrestler under fire would pause, and show his open hand to the referee. "See, my hand's open," he would say. Sure enough it would be—when he showed it to the referee—and on would go the dance.

O'Shocker took a heavy spill when Dusek caught him in a headlock and hurled him through the ropes. There was no press row to break O'Shocker's fall this trip and he made a one-point landing several feet from the ring. He took an 18-count before climbing back into the ring.

O'Shocker's Nose Bleeds.

At the six-minute mark the pair got into a high kick exchange and O'Shocker turned up with a bloody nose. For the duration of the event both men were well painted with red, O'Shocker's face, being somewhat of a mess.

The sight of the blood and the last pace of both men roused the spectators mightily during the final eight or 10 minutes. After O'Shocker butted Dusek down a couple of times with "flying tackles," the crowd sensed "the kill"; but Dusek crossed them up for the moment by sending O'Shocker to the canvas with a back body drop. Up again, the pair went into a whirlwind of action. Dusek made a leap at O'Shocker and wrapped his legs around O'Shocker while in mid-air. O'Shocker stood up there a minute, his bloody hands clawing at the air, and finally toppled over backwards by Dusek under him. O'Shocker turned as he landed and sprawled over Dusek. Amid frantic kicking and beating on the canvas by Dusek, the referee patted O'Shocker on the back as the victor, and the crowd loved it. The event lasted 18 minutes 4 seconds.

Pojoello, who gave away about 20 pounds to the 210-pound Steele, made a bit with the crowd. He kept after Steele like a terrier all the way through. Steele was able to put on holds but Pojoello, in general occasions, surprised the crowd by bridging out of difficulty. He is one strong little fellow, but could use about 15 pounds more weight. As it is he appears quite able to take care of himself.

Fred Grobmeier, an Iowa prodigy, pinned John Katan of Canada in 11 minutes 52 seconds with a body scissors in a rough match and John Maxon, New York, used a body slam and block to subdue Rudy La Ditz, who says he is from Poughkeepsie, N. Y., in eight minutes 24 seconds.

Commissioner Taylor told the Post-Dispatch that there were no 50 cent "slips" passed out for the card, and also said that the num-

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH
INVESTMENT TRUST
ACCOUNTING SOUGHT

Cyrus S. Eaton Charged With Mismanagement in Two Suits; Injunction Issued.

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, O., March 18.—Cyrus S. Eaton, Cleveland financier, was sued today for the second time in 24 hours, on allegations that he mismanaged and manipulated Continental Shares Inc., Investment Trust Company, of which he is chairman. Both of the suits were filed by minority stockholders. W. R. Burwell, president of Continental, issued a denial of the charges in the suits.

The second action asked for accounting and relief, and repayment to Continental of $2,400,000. It was filed here by Charles S. Wachner, a Cleveland stockholder, and named as defendants Eaton, Continental and Foreign Utilities, Ltd.

Wachner asked the court to require Eaton and Foreign Utilities to make an accounting to Continental Shares for all profits and benefits received by reason of a transaction in which Continental allegedly paid approximately $35,000,000 cash and 1,040,000 shares of its stock to Foreign Utilities in exchange for other stocks and investments.

The plaintiff alleged Foreign Utilities is merely a "paper" corporation to handle Eaton's transactions.

The original deal was allegedly made Oct. 10, 1930, and amended Jan. 29, 1931, to provide for the plaintiff to assume an indebtedness of $5,100,000 which existed at some time of the other company's holdings.

Burwell's statement said the transaction, questioned by Wachner "was thoroughly considered by the board of directors and Advisory Committee of Continental, was approved by the board in October, 1930, and reaffirmed by the board yesterday as highly advantageous and profitable to this company. The opportunity afforded or reviewing this transaction we will ask for an early hearing."

Eaton, who named in the other suit yesterday at Baltimore, Md. In the Baltimore action, George L. Gugle of Cleveland, O., enjoined a scheduled meeting of Continental stockholders there, and also alleged Eaton had mismanaged the company.

CHAPTER NINE. WITH such a social triumph as this wedding capping their varied achievements, it would have seemed that there was nothing more the six brothers could ask. That is where Capone enters. The Gennas' greatest ambition had not been gratified. They wanted to rule the Unione Siciliane, whose founder and president, Mike Merlo, had died in 1924.

The spell of this office exerted upon the imaginations of men of the Gennas' race was irresistible and has a twofold explanation. One, of course, was the pecuniary attraction. The other, old as the ages, was its symbol to them of high place—a patent of distinction, setting its possessor apart from his fellows. Capone, the Neapolitan, cherished no sentiments regarding it. To him it was a business proposition.

Prior to Merlo's death, as the reader has seen, the Gennas were Capone's allies, but with his passing alignments shifted. Primarily, Capone, who had maintained close relations with Merlo, was determined to name his successor. He did not want the Unione to pass into the control of somebody who might use it against him. He did not trust the Gennas. His choice for the place was Antonio Lombardo, partner of Joseph Aiello—commission brokers and cheese merchants.

To this, the answer of the six brothers was thumbs down. They would tell the cock-eyed world, "Who was Lombardo? What was his business and political importance compared with theirs? They called a meeting of their henchmen and adopted resolutions of protest. The decision infuriated them. They considered it a personal affront. And there was the commercial aspect. With the Unione they would have a complete monopoly of the alky-cooking industry; without it, a powerful rival backed by Capone's machine guns. The competition would be ruinous. Their financial life was at stake.

"Let's go," said the six brothers.

THEY went fast and far; they had seated Angelo, the tough boy, in the late Mike Merlo's chair before Capone suspected what was up. For the tactics of the Sicilian Gennas were not those of the North Side Irish. The O'Banions were straightforward foes, fighting in the open, giving no quarter and asking none. The way of the Gennas was compact of guile, stealth, and cunning—the smiling lip and the treacherous heart. They were organized hypocrites.

A factor favoring their scheme was the popularity they had acquired among their countrymen by their largesse. These were in the minority, but they were desperately loyal and determined. With the support of Angelo's dire reputation, they experienced no difficulty in impressing their neighbors, the Lombardo majority. Wherefore the six brothers established their dictatorship of the Unione. In European chancelleries this exploit would have been described as statesmanship; in Chicago, gangland called it muscling in.

The reader now understands why in 1925 Capone did not retaliate on the O'Banions for blasting his car into the junk-heap and filling Torrio with lead. He was occupied with the Gennas to the exclusion of all other matters. The O'Banions would receive attention later, and how! As for the six brothers:

Angelo was the first to die. His honeymoon was in its fifth month the morning of May 25, when he kissed his bride good-by at the Belmont Hotel and climbed into his $6000 roadster to go to the alky plant. It was the old story of swindled off-shotguns and a volley of slugs.

The inevitable touring car with stolen license plates followed the offer of 12 blocks south of his fashionable abode, and in Ogden avenue, near Hudson, three glistening muzzles, poked over the starboard side, spoke their piece for the tough boy. The evidence at the inquest was nil and it was continued indefinitely.

MIKE was next—within three weeks, June 13—and all the thrills of blood-and-thunder fiction were packed into the circumstances of his death. It was the Day of the Sixth Shots. There are two versions of it at Police Headquarters, in the big granite building that holds the stars of officers killed in the line of duty. There is the star of Harold F. Olson and there is the star of Charles B. Walsh. There is a third memento in the Criminal Court records of Cook County—an acquittal for John Scalise and Albert Anselmi for the murder of the two Police sergeants.

This starkest action-drama of the bootleg war opens with Capone's pair of ace gunners, Scalise and Anselmi, and Mike Genna driving

Collecting Party Souvenirs
WILL you kindly tell me if it is correct to take home souvenirs from a party? The place cards, decorated nut holders, and other bits of table decorations? I like to keep them for souvenirs of that particular party.

E. S.

This isn't regarded as very good manners, and can as a matter of fact, give a very "accustomed-to-going-out" impression. On some occasions, when there is an especially personal favor, you might be asked by the hostess to take the favor as you go home, but this isn't very usual. And certainly, if there is any doubt about it, it is better, far better, not to take the place card or the favor, and certainly not the nut cup.

HEALTH

Brief articles prepared by experts. Edited by Dr. Leo Goldston, of the New York Academy of Medicine.

A Germ Menagerie.

HERE ought to be a museum or a zoo of microbes in every city.

Practically every community of my size has one form or another menagerie. Animals, savage and otherwise, are gathered from many parts of the world and are maintained at some expense so that one might know, by seeing that tigers and elephants do really exist.

These institutions are maintained because pictures and descriptions do not carry the same weight of conviction as does sight to the eye.

Why not then have a museum or menagerie of microbes? These infinitesimally small living things are infinitely more important than the gigantic elephant.

Certainly, germs have been responsible for a great many more deaths than have the wild animals during the famous black death course, one-quarter of the world's population was destroyed.

Some time ago, the papers carried a story of a New York boy who was thoroughly convinced that milk came from bottles and not from cows. He had never seen a cow. Millions of us are in somewhat the same position in regard to diseases, never having seen a germ.

Perhaps if such museums of microbes, as are here suggested, were established, we would develop more wholesome consideration of the well effects which germs can produce, and perhaps be less free in the manner in which we spread infection and infectious material.

At any rate, it is interesting suggestion, even though it does not suggest the picture of father taking his youngsters out on Sunday afternoon to show them under a high-powered microscope the impatient swimming to and fro of a typhoid bacillus in its droplet.

Nevertheless it would serve to convince a vast number of people that there really are typhoid germs, salmonella bacilli and other infectious agents.

"Rinse out the pan in which milk is to be heated with cold water and then pour in the milk. This will greatly lessen the liability of scorching."

ONOVAN was plainly bored and wanted to get back down stairs to visit Johnna, who was probably very bored, too, by now, since Luke didn't want to dance. As the four of them left, a young man who could have passed for a college chap almost any place, came through the door with a girl and nodded pleasantly to Clayton.

"Hello," said Clayton. "What are you doing here?"

"Oh," returned the young man easily, "just out reading a few news papers." He's in love with you, the old fool."

She laughed sleepily.

"This is the kind of business you had to transact! You couldn't come here, though, when I asked you." He came closer and took her shoulder in his grasp. "Do you know what time it is? It's three-thirty."

"Am I disorderly?" she laughed again.

"Something you ate, no doubt," he said wickedly.

"Sue me."

Just then Clayton came up. Mac introduced them. Johnny nodded curtly. "How's business?" he asked.

The older man examined him closely for a reason for his pugnacious attitude. He said nothing.

"I have been telling Miss MacIntyre," said Johnny slowly, looking him straight in the eye, "that it's getting late—and that she works entirely too hard at these business engagements after hours."

Clayton listened patiently.

"You see, we don't try to force anybody to join our crowd. If you come with us though, we'll see that everybody has a good time. And we'll get the pleasure that can do that doesn't think we haven't."

"You're an exclusive bunch, in other words," laughed Clayton.

"Why don't you and I get together for lunch some time next week? You can't hold out another year independent, and you know it."

R. J. waved good-by with the hand which held his cigarette. "Your girl is waiting. See you again sometime."

As he went down the steps, the young man called after him, "I wouldn't be in your shoes for anything!" But R. J. kept going, he didn't look back.

"Just another racketeer," he explained to the rest of the party. "You can't turn around these days without stepping on them."

He looked like a college boy," said Mac.

"Probably was. Well, they can't all be bonds."

"No somebody's got to buy them." This from Donovan. "And I tell you this is one of the ones that is buying."

LUKE, it appeared, was rapidly getting tight. While Mac went to powder her nose, Clayton took him outside to his car and turned him over the driver. Luke was propped up stiffly in the back seat, where he softly and sleepily repeated The Sweetheart of Sigma.

"Watch him, Jim," commanded Clayton. "Don't let him make back there; he'll burn everything up." As Clayton went back inside he heard Luke say, "How did you like that, m' fine friend?" And the driver gravely replied, "Very good, sir." "Good, nothing," corrected Luke. "It's perfect. I know where the body is buried."

It was an intermission when Mac returned to her booth. As she was waiting for Clayton, Johnny was surging over.

He was frowning. "Mac, what sort of a party is this, anyway?"

"What do you mean?"

"Who is that old bird you're with—is he your boss?"

She nodded. She wished he would go away.

CHAPTER SIXTEEN.

UP THE winding stairs they went to a door which was guarded very casually but quite effectively by a lantern-jawed man in a dinner coat. He let them in. Hattie, they found, had boosted a $5 bill up to $22 by playing the bird cage. She was ready to stop when they joined her.

"That will help pay the check," Clayton was grinning.

"Ronwick," Hattie said, "I wish you'd watch out for Luke. I think he will pass out unless somebody watches him."

"Wasn't that what he wanted to do?"

"You take him out to your car."

He promised to do so.

The small gambling room was almost filled. Roulette was the favorite, there being three wheels and a tight knot of men and women around each.

Said Clayton: "I'll bet that orchestra leader didn't realize how many Chicago gamblers and their women folk are out here. They'd make him stop wise-cracking them if they were staying long."

"Are there really lots of them here?"

"Place is full of them."

The sight of money, the feel of luxury and ease and power which came from looking and thinking about money, inflamed Mac.

"That little bald-headed man," he indicated, "is very wealthy. Mac goes to Chicago and works for the R. J. Clayton Co., a big outfit of dry cleaners. The business is threatened by racketeers. Mac proves her diplomacy in handling one gang of racketeers, and Clayton, known as R. J., takes a fancy to her. He invites her to a party at his home. Johnny arrives on the day of the party. He and Mac have a violent quarrel when he learns where she is going and that she intends to go ahead with her business career. At the party Clayton makes surreptitious love to Mac. Then the party adjourns to the music room where Johnny is leading the orchestra. Johnny stirs Mac to tears by playing their favorite tunes of course days. Clayton suggests to Mac that they go upstairs where there is gambling.

AN IDEAL FEMININE HOME

A corner of the music room in Miss Compson's new home.

HOLLYWOOD, March 16.

ETTY COMPSON, beautiful blonde picture star set in the witness stand in a Los Angeles divorce court yesterday and tearfully recited that her home hadn't been a home at all. "There were constant streams of people going through the place all day Sunday and during the evenings," she said. "My husband held what commonly is termed 'open house' and the nervous strain was unbearable. Sometimes I slept all night long and went to my work next morning utterly fatigued."

Betty was asking for a divorce from James Cruz, motion picture director.

"Did you remonstrate with your husband about this condition?" Her attorney asked.

"Yes, about once a week."

"What did he say?"

"He suggested that I move into Hollywood and finally told me if I didn't like it, I could get out."

Which she promptly did. Flintshire, their suburban estate, lost its mistress that very day. It was an old man's home, built and way, with burles on some of the windows, saddles on the floors and guns in racks. Neighbors had complained that one of the amusements indulged by party guests there was the shooting of blackbirds with .22 caliber rifles. And there were songs concerning "Sweet Adeline," "Down Where the Cotton Blossoms Grow" and other melodies which weren't so melodious. All of which irked Miss Compson sorely.

"Yes, sir," with much conviction. "And we can give you more protection, too."

Clayton listened patiently.

SHIP EXPLOSION REFUGEES BEING TAKEN OFF ISLE

Food, Medical Supplies and Doctor Reach Survivors of Viking Off Newfoundland Coast.

Affliction.

By the Associated Press.

ST. JOHNS, N. F., March 19.—Food, medical supplies and a doctor reached the survivors of the Viking on Horse Island today. Dr. Forsey and members of the crew of the sealer Imogene made their way to the island over close-packed and hummocky ice. They began immediately to take survivors to the Imogene to be fed and sent on to the sealer Sagona nearby. The Sagona was to bring them to St. Johns for hospital care.

The men of the Viking sought refuge on the island after their ship blew up Sunday night.

Consul-General Edward A. Dow sent a request to Washington for an American ice-cutter and was prepared to radio full instructions for navigating the ice field surrounding the island.

George Whitley, a veteran sealing captain, returned a report that a rescue airplane would be unable to land at the island. He said there was a clear space on the southern side of the island.

Already on Sagona.
Six men are already aboard the Sagona, having been picked up after many hours of exposure on ice and wreckage.

Navigator W. Kennedy, one of the six, has contracted pneumonia. Wireless Operator C. King has frozen feet now attacked by gangrene, and Harry Sargent, American engineer, is suffering from an eye affliction.

Crews of the Beothic and Sagona with additional doctors and supplies reached the island close behind the crew of the Imogene.

Although the most pressing task was succor of the survivors on the island, search for the missing continued. The best available figures indicated that there were 18 unaccounted for, including Varick Frissell, New York motion picture producer, and his cameraman, A. G. Penrod.

Total of 144 on Ship.
The tally stood: Survivors on the island 118; survivors on rescue ship, 62; bodies recovered, 2; unaccounted for 18; making 144, the number supposed to have been aboard the Viking.

One of the two bodies was found amid wreckage of the Viking near the spot where it blew up. The body was picked up by the sealer Eagle and was identified by papers in the pockets as that of Patrick Bartlett of Brigus, N. F. The other body was not identified.

Sargent, the only member of the movie expedition accounted for, said he last saw Frissell and Penrod just before the explosion when the three of them were seated at a table in a cabin.

Plane for Relief Expedition Must Be Altered.

BOSTON, March 19.—Bernt Balchen, who arrived here this morning to pilot a relief air expedition to Horse Island, N. F., where the Viking survivors are marooned, said that he could not leave before midnight tonight.

The pilot of two Polar expeditions needed only one look at the big amphibian being prepared for the flight at the East Boston Airport to decide that it was unfit for the trip in its present condition.

The flight to Horse Island will be made in from one to three hours, the last stop to be made at Harbor Grace, St. Johns, or Corner Brook, N. F. Four men will make the trip—Balchen, Merion Cooper, moving picture photographer, who organized the expedition for Dr. Lewis Russell, father of Varick Frissell, one of the Americans missing from the Viking; Roy Gates, who made the sealing trip on the Viking last year, and Ralph Enslow or Barney Barbin, New York pilots.
